Rescue Ship Is Prepared

Astronauts Not In Peril

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Preparation of a rescue ship for the Skylab 2 astronauts started Thursday as a "prudent" measure after a very serious problem developed, space officials said. Unless more trouble occurs, the record 59-day mission will continue normally.

"We agree 100 per cent with what you've just announced," said Skylab 2 commander Alan L. Bean after being told of the decision. "Everybody's happy up here."

Johnson Space Center Director Dr. Christopher C. Kraft told the astronauts "we feel fairly confident" despite a failure which has caused half of a rocket system aboard the Apollo command ship to be shut down.

"To be prudent, however," Kraft said, accelerated preparation for launch has started on the Skylab 3 rocket and Apollo craft which can be used to rescue the men of Skylab 2.

Skylab 2 astronauts Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma were in no immediate danger and continued experiments aboard the orbiting laboratory.

But experts worried about possible failure of two jet engines identical to two others which failed earlier.

The problem is in two of four rocket propulsion systems which steer the Apollo command ship — the craft which ferries the astronauts between earth and the Skylab space station orbiting at 271 miles. The Apollo craft is docked at one end of the Skylab.

One of the rocket systems developed a leak Thursday morning and had to be turned off. A leak earlier knocked out another of the thrusters, leaving only two rocket steering systems in operation.

"We feel fairly confident that we've got two quads (rocket systems) for attitude control should we have a problem with anything that would result in an immediate need for re-entry," Kraft told the astronauts.

He said the rocket systems were being checked for any "generic problem" which might give an indication of problems to expect from the remaining two systems. No such problems have been found, however.

"In concluding, we're proceeding here as if we're going to have a nominal mission," said Kraft. "We're going to plan your work days and your off days and the use of the on-board equipment as if it were a perfectly nominal mission . . . we feel that's the proper way to go."

"You just said the right words," responded Bean. "We've been hoping you'd say that. We've been sort of concerned and I think I speak for Jack and Owen, we're pretty happy with the way things are going at the moment."

Bean said he felt that even if new problems occurred, "we'd still have plenty of capability to return home safely."

Sept. 5 would be the 'earliest possible moment' that a rescue craft could be ready for launch, officials said. This would be 20 days before the 59-day mission is scheduled to end. The rescue craft would be piloted by two reserve Skylab astronauts.

Officials earlier did not express the same confidence Kraft showed when he was talking to the crew.

"At this point, it looks like the rescue mission is the direction we are heading," Flight Director Charles Lewis told newsmen. "Right now, we have no confidence in the command ship."

"It's a very serious problem," said Glynn S. Lunney, operations manager of the Apollo spacecraft program office at the Johnson Space Center. "If we did not have a rescue capability, we would be moving in the direction of getting the spacecraft down as rapidly as we could."

An Apollo spacecraft is currently being prepared at Cape Kennedy, Fla., for the planned launch of the Skylab 3 astronauts who were scheduled to spend 56 days or more aboard the space station starting Nov. 9.

That craft could be converted to a rescue ship by removing some equipment and installing two extra couches.

A rescue mission would involve launching the spacecraft atop a Saturn 1B rocket with Skylab back up astronauts Vance D. Brand and Don L. Lind on board. They would guide the craft to a rendezvous with the Skylab. The crippled Apollo craft would be jettisoned from the main port of the space station and the rescue craft would then dock with the space lab. Bean, Lousma and Garriott would board the rescue ship for the trip back to earth.

WINGS BENT . . . just a little, but the two women in plane escape.

2 Kearney Women Unhurt

Two Kearney women escaped without so much as a scratch when their light plane crash-landed Thursday afternoon about one-half mile north of Pawnee Lake, near Emerald.

Myrna Oertwig, 47, pilot of the plane said she was preparing to land at Lincoln Municipal Airport after a flight from Kearney when the plane's engine quit running.

Also in the Cherokee 140 was a passenger, Kristi Ansbach, 26.

Mrs. Oertwig said she touched down at the crest of a small grassy hill north of the lake and rolled smoothly until she hit a bump near a rutted dirt road leading north from the lake.

Then, she said the wing hit a tree. The plane spun and came to rest about 75 to 100 feet from the tree.

Displaying little reaction following the incident, Mrs. Oertwig responded, "Well, I haven't torn my stockings yet," when a television newsman asked that she walk down into weeds where the plane lay.

After the crash, Mrs. Oertwig said she realized that the engine stopped running because she had neglected to switch tanks when one was empty.

Suit Charges Beef Freeze Invalid

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The U.S. District Court in Lincoln Thursday was asked to bar the Cost of Living Council from freezing beef prices at March 29 levels.

The suit claims that President Nixon's action freezing the price of beef violates the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution.

The suit was filed by the Minden Beef Co., a beef processor, and the Greater New York Association of Meat and Poultry Dealers, Inc., a non-profit New York organization of beef dealers.

Robert B. Crosby, an attorney for the two plaintiffs in the suit, said the suit filed here is similar to one filed last week in San Francisco. He said no court action has yet been taken in response to that suit.

More Suits Expected

Although Crosby would not say whether food processors have decided to take to the courts in an effort to avoid losing what Crosby said was "millions every day," he did say he expects similar suits to be filed in other parts of the country.

Among the allegations in the suit filed late Thursday is one that the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970 is an unlawful delegation of legislative authority, in violation of the Fifth Amendment.

The suit also charges that meat companies cannot do business under the beef price freeze without sustaining substantial losses.

Without Compensation

Therefore, the suit alleges, businesses and investments are being destroyed and property is being taken without just compensation, violating the due process and equal protection provisions of the Fifth Amendment.

In addition to violating constitutional protections, the suit alleges that the beef prices freeze violates the law setting up price freeze machinery, which has provisions that freeze regulations should prevent serious market disruptions and domestic shortages of raw materials and that hearings should be held on regulations if possible.

The suit also charges that Canadian meat companies are buying live cattle in Omaha and other places, shipping the cattle to Canada for slaughter and processing and then selling the meat in the United States, since imports from Canada are not covered by the freeze.

Crosby said he would request a hearing on a motion for a preliminary injunction as soon as possible. U.S. District Judge Warren K. Urbom was out of town Thursday.

Crosby said a preliminary injunction issued by Urbom would "for all practical purposes" have nationwide impact.

Hearing 'Just Calm Before Storm'

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

"This is just the calm before the storm," predicted State Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora, chairman of the Legislature's Public Works Committee, after a joint session with the Agriculture Committee on land use planning.

The committees ran out of witnesses in the middle of the afternoon of a day-long series of hearings on land use planning and flood plain control.

Dayle Williamson, executive secretary of the Natural Resource Commission, told the senators that his agency was running behind its self-imposed 19-year schedule to complete flood plain controls and regulations throughout the state.

5 To 8 Years

Sen. Loran Schmit of Bellwood, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, predicted that once federal land use laws were in effect, the agency would have from five to eight years to complete the job and asked Williamson to make some recommendations on what his agency would need to get the job done in that short a time.

At the close of the meeting Williamson told a reporter that just assembling a staff large enough to do the job of locating the flood plains, enforcing the regulations and administering the program in eight years would be difficult even if adequate funding was available but he added that it could be done.

The morning session of the Agriculture Committee hearing brought suggestions that two existing state agencies might be able to take on the task of land use planning and regulation if the federal government insists the state develop such a system.

The Office of Programming and Planning and the Natural Resource Commission were both suggested as possible places to put the land planning operation.

Senators Determined

It was apparent that the senators wished to avoid establishing a new government agency and were determined to exercise considerable control over whatever agency might get the job.

"This will become one of the most powerful agencies in state government. Such agencies tend to become a power within themselves. We need to devise a method of making the agency directly responsible to elected officials," said Sen John DeCamp of Neligh, who expressed the thinking of several other senators at the hearing.

"The board of the resource commission will be almost entirely elected in a few years which would make it directly responsible to the public," suggested Robert Warrick, chairman of the Lower Elkhorn Natural Resource District.

Marvin Carlson, assistant director of the Conservation and Survey Division of the University of Nebraska, explained how data obtained from a satellite could be used to determine the kind of use an area of land is under.

"The satellite sends us a new image of each area every 18 days so we can keep track of changes. We can put together a map of the entire state showing current land use in a short time with this data," Carlson explained.

Kremer's comment seemed appropriate after an exchange between Warrick and sens. Schmit and James Dickenson of Omaha, who both protested Warrick's suggestion that tough controls over landowners' use of land were needed to protect future generations.

Blowouts Cited

Cited were areas of the Sandhills where irrigation efforts combined with farming had resulted in blowouts.

An aroused Schmit said, "These areas can serve as an expensive lesson for land developers but we need to protect the people who own land. We have people who don't own anything bigger than a cemetery plot who want to come out and tell the farmer how to operate his land. It is government interference like this that has led to the current food shortage in this country."

Dickenson commended Warrick for his interest in conservation but backed Schmit's suggestion that "the people who own the land and pay the taxes on the land ought to have the right to control it."

Williamson warned the committee that the federal law as passed by the Senate had some sanctions against states that don't develop their own land use programs.

"We expect the final bill to call for the withholding of funds from airport construction and highway use if the law is not complied with," he predicted.

Senate Supports Beef Freeze End

©The New York Times

Washington — The Senate voted 84 to 5 Thursday to end the freeze on beef prices immediately in order to avert shortages.

The action came in the form of an amendment to a minor and unrelated bill, and its ultimate fate in the House — and eventual acceptance by President Nixon — were highly uncertain. But the vote was a clear and spontaneous reflection of congressional sentiment against the freeze.

The vote came, ironically, shortly after the Labor Department reported a decline in wholesale prices in July, thanks mainly to the general price freeze and the newly imposed export controls on soybeans. The dip was the largest for a month in a quarter-century and followed seven months of abnormally big increases in the wholesale price index.

However, Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz readily agreed with two senators at a congressional hearing that the July results did not constitute a "trend" toward lower or even stable prices. As Nixon had said July 18, Shultz conceded that further price increases were in store in coming months, though he expressed hope that "the economy will work its way through to much lower rates of inflation."

Under the administration's price control program, the ceiling on beef prices will remain until Sept. 12. This position was maintained Thursday by Shultz, by the White House and by John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, though Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz had indicated he was now sympathetic to an immediate end of the beef freeze.

Proponents of lifting the beef price freeze asked the House Rules Committee Thursday night for permission to let the House vote on the proposal Friday. However, the committee refused to grant such a permission, thus delaying a vote until September, when Congress returns from its August recess.

Curtis, Hruska On Winning Side

Washington (UPI) — On the roll call vote Thursday by which the Senate approved an amendment that would lift the freeze on beef prices, Nebraska Republican Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska both voted with the majority.

Rains Hit Northeast

By The Associated Press

Torrential rains struck parts of the Northeast Thursday, causing flooding, snarling traffic and interrupting telephone service.

Two persons drowned in New Jersey, where states of emergency were declared in North Plainfield and Bound Brook after drenching rainfall.

Two persons drowned in North Plainfield, where flooding up to 10 feet was reported. Hundreds were evacuated from their homes.

Stephen Langhorne, 15, drowned when he fell from a canoe and was caught under an abandoned car. Police said the other drowning occurred when one car was swept on top of another in flood waters.

Both drownings occurred on Somerset Street.

In New York City, a downpour of nearly 2.5 inches knocked out thousands of Manhattan telephone lines, snarled subways and delayed trains and road traffic.

House Approves Alaska Pipeline

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted Thursday to approve the trans-Alaska pipeline, sending the issue to a conference committee to settle differences with a version passed by the Senate.

The vote was 356 to 60.

Environmentalists tried unsuccessfully to subject the pipeline to further court tests or delay it while an alternative route through Canada was studied.

But the majority of the House agreed with Rep. Joseph P. Vigorito, D-Pa., who said: "let's build the pipeline through Alaska and let's start digging tomorrow."

A move to permit environmental lawsuits against the project was rejected 221 to 198 after President Nixon came out against it.

A proposal for a six-month study of a route through Canada to the Midwest was rejected on a voice vote.

A few amendments were adopted.

One, by Rep. Paul W. Cronin, R-Mass., would require hiring only U.S. citizens for construction, operation and maintenance of the pipeline as long as unemployment in the United States is above 4 per cent. It was 4.8 per cent in June.

Another amendment adopted would require approval of Congress before any oil from the pipeline could be exported. Although oil companies say the oil is destined for domestic consumption, critics of the project have contended some of it might be sold to Japan.

Other amendments adopted would impose a "buy American" policy on pipeline materials and require the operators of the pipeline to pay cleanup costs in the event of oil spills.

Nebraskans Divided

Washington (AP) — Nebraska's three Republican congressmen divided over the issue of whether to permit environmental lawsuits against the Alaskan oil pipeline. The House rejected the move, putting John Y. McCollister and David Martin on the winning side with "no" votes and Charles Thone on the losing side with "yes" votes.

ITT Corp. Tried To Influence Top U.S. Officials

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — The International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. conducted a well-planned campaign to win help from top dministration officials in blocking antitrust action against the company, according to the ITT documents, which the White House reprtedly feared would be made public last year. The documents, mentioned at the Watergate hearings, include a letter to Vice President Agnew from an ITT official.

Ex-CIA Director Testifies

Washington — Richard M. Helms, the former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, told the Senate Watergate Committee he had resisted White House efforts to involve the agency in the Watergate coverup. The testimony by Helms and his former deputy, Gen. Robert D. Cushman Jr., contradicted sworn statements made by H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman. (More on Page 2.)

Patriotism Said Ellsberg Motivation

Washington — The Central Intelligence Agency's psychological profile of Daniel Ellsberg concluded he was motivated "by what he deemed a higher order of patriotism," in disclosing the Pentagon Papers in 1971. This was the study, prepared at White House insistence, that was rejected by the special White House investigating unit, which broke into the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist in an effort to get his medical records.

Argentina Bill Passes Anyway

Buenos Aires — Argentina's Chamber of Deputies passed the new foreign investment measure that had touched off an international controversy with the disclosure that the American Embassy had tried to get the government to soften the bill's restrictions. In approving the measure, the lower house of the National Congress also passed a unanimous resolution calling for the expulsion of Max V. Krebs, the embassy official who criticized the proposed legislation.

Emergency Preparations Under Way

Houston — Space officials ordered emergency preparations for a rescue mission to retrieve the Skylab 2 astronauts. The unprecedented round-the-clock effort that could lead to the first space rescue was ordered after a second set of steering rockets on the astronauts' ferry vehicle developed a serious leak. (More on Page 1.)

Senate OKs End To Beef Freeze

Washington — The Senate voted overshelmingly for an immediate end to the freeze on beef prices, which has been blamed for growing shortages. The action, a spontaneous reflection of congressional sentiment, faces an uncertain future in the House. The 84-to-5 vote came just after the Labor Department reported that wholesale prices had declined in July. The largest one-month price drop in 25 years was attributed largely to the price freeze and export controls on soybeans. (More on Page 1.)

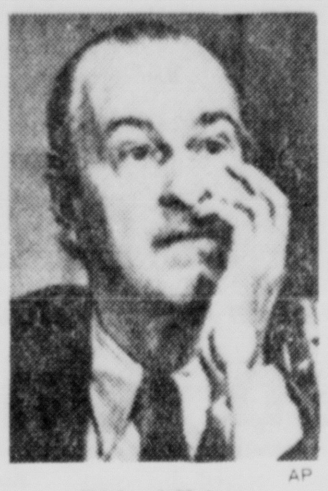
Pipeline Challenges Banned

Washington — In a major defeat for environmentalists, the House voted to bar further court challenges to the Alaskan pipeline project on environmental issues. (More on Page 1.)

Senate OKs Minimum Wage Bill

Washington — The Senate voted, 62 to 28, for the minimum wage bill that would increase minimum hourly wages for most workers from $1.60 to $2.20 by next July 1. Congressional leaders were considering postponing House action until after the summer recess to avoid the possibility of a pocket veto by the President, who reportedly considers the bill inflationary. (More on Page 3.)

One Bugger Was On CIA Retainer



AP

Richard Helms

AP

Gen. Robert E. Cushman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Helms, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, disclosed Thursday that one of the men arrested in the Watergate break-in was being paid a $100 monthly retainer at the time.

And Helms's onetime deputy told the Senate Watergate committee that John D. Ehrlichman denied to him that he had sent E. Howard Hunt to get CIA assistance for a White House "plumbers" assignment. Hunt later pleaded guilty to his involvement in the Watergate break-in.

Gen. Robert E. Cushman a four-star general who now is commandant of the Marine Corps, said Ehrlichman's denial "shook up my recollection," but that a transcript of his tape-recorded meeting with Hunt confirmed it again.

"There is no question in your mind as you appear before this committee?" asked Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn.

"No sir," said Cushman.

The committee, driving to finish the current phase of the hearings and go on vacation by the end of next week, polished off its questioning of Helms and Cushman in a day. Not since the third week of the nine-week old hearings have two witnesses come and gone in the same day.

"The agency had no involvement in the break-in, no involvement whatever," said Helms in the only emotional moment of an otherwise amiable session. He pounded his palm against the table as he said it.

Helms, now ambassador to Iran, said he resisted White House feelers to get the CIA involved in the Watergate cover-up, saying "I want to lean heavily on the fact that I was trying to keep the agency clean and that I did not (succumb), as long as I kept it clean I felt I was doing my job."

Cushman, who appeared in uniform with rows of ribbons on his chest, said that when Hunt came to see him on July 22, 1971, he tape recorded the conversation because Hunt requested they meet alone in his office.

The transcript of that conversation, given to the committee, showed Hunt saying "I've been charged with a highly sensitive mission by the White House to visit and elicit information from an individual whose ideology we aren't entirely sure of."

Hunt asked for "flash alias documentation" and "some degree of physical disguise" and Cushman ordered it done. Hunt was given "notional pocket litter documentation," which included false identification cards, as well as a wig, a voice-altering device and a camera hidden in a tobacco pouch.

The key point of the transcript, however was a partial quotation from Hunt that began "Well, Ehrlichman said..." and Cushman's reply, "Yes, he called me."

Cushman said on last Dec. 13, almost a year after he became Marine commandant, he was told by CIA official William Colby that the agency needed to prepare a summary of their contacts with Hunt.

"He refreshed my memory on the (Ehrlichman) Phone call. I couldn't remember in December who phoned me from the White House. I thought it was Ehrlichman but I wasn't sure.

Cushman said he dictated a memo on Jan. 8, but because he wasn't certain enough about the source, he wrote that it was either Ehrlichman, Charles W. Colson or John W.Dean III.

Ehrlichman telephoned and said, "Look, I can't recall this phone call prior to the 22nd of July, in fact my records show I was out of town," Cushman recalled. "This shook up my recollection even worse."

He said Dean, then the White House counsel, also telephoned to deny sending Hunt over.

Cushman said he then rewrote the memorandum, leaving out all names. Then, when he got the transcript of the tape, he went back to his original thought that the call came from Ehrlichman, he said.

"Is it your testimony Ehrlichman put no pressure at all on you to have his name removed," Cushman was asked.

"No, sir . . . he didn't ask me to tear it up."

Both Cushman and Helms testified Hunt's demands mounted to the point where they cut off CIA help.

"He wanted an office and wanted a telephone to be monitored as an answering service would when he wasn't there," Cushman said. "This was too much and I called Ehrlichman and told him he couldn't accede to the request, that he, Hunt, was not exercising proper judgment. He said okay."

Cushman said he learned of the 1971 break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in May, while he was in Europe and long after he had left the CIA.

Two previously secret CIA memoranda written in August 1971—a month before the psychiatrist burglary—show that Hunt was escalating his demands on the agency.

One was a request for the services of a "specific individual"—a secretary working in the Paris station of the CIA.

A week later, another memo reported Hunt asked for a courier to to meet him at the airport to receive exposed film and arrange for its development. That was done, Cushman said, but other requests for a driver's license, credit cards and a New York office were refused.

Six of the seven men convicted of conspiracy, wiretapping and burglary in the Watergate break-in had former ties to the CIA—this nation's spying organization in other countries. Helms said one of the men, Eugenio R. Martinez, had been on a retainer.

Martinez's job, Helms said, was "to report on individuals who came in from Cuba as to whether they would be worth interrogating or interviewing or not in Florida and he had been on that retainer of about $100 a month on the understanding he would report in from time to time.

"When I found out that he was still on the—had this connection with the agency at the time of this break-in—he was cut off."

Q. When was he taken off retainer by the CIA?

A. When it was ascertained that he was involved in the break-in, he was taken off right then . . . I imagine within 24 hours or 48 hours or 72 hours after the break-in.

Opening Witness Today Is Walters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The opening witness Friday before the Senate Watergate committee is scheduled to be Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Following Walters on the witness schedule is L. Patrick Gray III, former acting director of the FBI.

The hearings, beginning at 9:30 a.m. EDT, will be televised on ABC.

Inouye Support Grows Following 'Jap' Remark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several of his fellow senators rose Thursday to the support of Watergate committee member Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, and the lawyer who called him "that little Jap" made a public—but not a personal—apology.

"I had no intention to insult Sen. Inouye," said attorney John J. Wilson in a statement. "I am sorry I said it and will personally apologize when Sen. Inouye apologizes for calling my client a liar over the networks."

The reference was to Inouye's offhand and overheard remark, "what a liar," following testimony before the Senate committee last week by former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman.

Yesterday, in a side comment to a newsman following morning testimony by another Wilson client, former White House chief of staff H. R. Haldeman, an angry Wilson referred to the Hawaii Democrat as "that little Jap."

Given wide publicity, the incident triggered strong reactions from Japanese-Americans, especially in Inouye's home state where 36.7 per cent of the population is of Japanese extraction, as is the senator.

Wilson was called a bigot and numerous persons pointed out that Inouye lost his right arm and won the Distinguished Service Cross fighting with the U.S. Army's crack Nisei unit.

'National Security' Wiretaps Endorsed

©The New York Times

Washington — The theory that President Nixon had the right to authorize "national security" wiretaps without a warrant, raised on behalf of John D. Ehrlichman in the Senate Watergate hearings, has been endorsed in a federal district court ruling here.

Judge John H. Pratt held that the President's constitutional powers enabled him to order electronic surveillance "relating to foreign affairs and deemed essential to protect this nation and its citizens against hostile acts of a foreign power" without getting court approval, as any other wiretapper must.

A week ago, John J. Wilson, Ehrlichman's counsel, told Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., the committee chairman, that the President had the power to break the law if he determined that it was necessary to protect "national security."

Five days earlier, in a decision of which Wilson was apparently unaware, Pratt had approved electronic surveillance of the Jewish Defense League (JDL) on the ground that its protest demonstrations threatened "peaceful foreign relations" with the Soviet Union and thus national security.

"Under the facts of this case, which show a clear threat to this country's foreign relations," Pratt wrote, "it is the executive and not the judiciary which should determine whether or not an electronic surveillance requires prior judicial authorization."

The federal judge contended that a unanimous 1972 Supreme Court decision prohibiting warrantless wiretaps in connection with the bombing of a Central Intelligence Agency office dealt only with "the domestic aspects of our national security" and thus was not applicable.

Violent protests by the Jewish Defense League against Russian policies, both real and threatened, Pratt concluded, were "obviously detrimental to the continued peaceful relations between the United States and the Soviet Union and threatened the President's ability and constitutional authority to conduct the foreign relations of this country."

This, the judge maintained, brought the wiretaps in question within those permitted without a warrant by the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1968, the same authority cited by Wilson before the Ervin committee.

Minimum Wage Bill Approved In Senate

World News

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill raising the minimum wage to $2.20 and extending its protection to another seven million workers won Senate approval Thursday, despite talks of a presidential veto.

The 62 to 28 vote sent the bill to the House where action is expected Friday, the last day before Congress begins a one-month recess.

In other major action Thursday, the Senate:

—Voted to override President Nixon's veto of a bill blocking administration attempts to close eight Public Health Service hospitals. The 77 to 16 margin was 15 votes more than required to override.

The measure, which also would authorize a $185-million three-year program of developing emergency medical-service systems, now goes to the House.

On Wednesday the Senate voted to direct the President to take control of the nation's oil supply and oversee its equitable distribution among all areas and all segments of the oil industry.

The oil and beef-price provisions were added to a House-passed bill to require that copies of coins be labeled as such.

The bill, passed 88 to 0, with its amendments, now returns to the House where action on the two key amendments is expected Friday.

During minimum-wage debate in the House and Senate, Republican opponents predicted Nixon would veto the measure as inflationary.

But Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said Labor Secretary Peter Brennan told him Wednesday: "I will request to the President that he sign the bill. I have no assurance or commitment that he will do so."

Javits said the statement was reconfirmed by Brennan's office Thursday.

The Senate vote was two votes more than needed to override a veto.

Opponents, led by Sens. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, and Peter Dominick, R-Colo., argued that the step-ups in the minimum were so abrupt they would result in serious damage to the fight against inflation and result in increased unemployment.

The bill is a compromise measure, hammered out by Senate-House conferees.

Here are major provisions:

—Raises the $1.60 hourly minimum wage for most nonfarm workers to $2 on Oct. 1, and to $2.20 next July 1.

—Raises the $1.60 minimum for workers first covered in 1966, mainly employes of large retail stores, to $1.80 on Oct. 1, $2 next July 1, and $2.20 on July 1, 1975.

—Raises the $1.30 minimum for covered farm workers to $1.60 Oct. 1, $1.80 July 1, $2 July 1, 1975, and $2.20 July 1, 1976.

—Extends minimum wage and overtime to full-time domestic servants, including babysitters. Live-in domestics would receive the minimum but not overtime. The occasional babysitter is exempted.

—Allows employers to hire students at 85 per cent of the minimum under certain conditions. This applies if the establishment hires fewer than four students to work up to 20 hours a week. Any number of full-time students may be hired by colleges at the 85-per-cent rate.

—Gradually reduces the number of hours that policemen, firemen and prison guards must work before qualifying for overtime pay.

—Phases out the minimum-wage exemption for stores that are part of a chain with annual sales of more than $250,000. The exemption will end July 1, 1976.

—Gradually reduces before repealing in 1976 the number of weeks that seasonal industries are exempt from paying overtime.

Paralyzed Man Believed Dying Not So Terrifying

By Arthur J. Snider
(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — From head to toe, no muscle moved. Roger Skoda, paralyzed, could gesture only with his eyeballs.

Nurses at suburban Hinsdale Sanitarium and Hospital framed their questions so he could answer yes or no. It could not be a vocal response. His neck, throat, face and mouth were paralyzed, too.

Code Used

A code was worked out in which an up-and-down movement of the eyeballs meant affirmative, and side-to-side, negative.

Last week, the 39-year-old engineer returned to his job as assistant superintendent of the Brookfield North Riverside Water Commission, still a bit unsteady but a conquerer of the uncommon nerve-afflicting disease called Gullain-Barre Syndrome.

"As far as I can see, dying isn't all that terrifying," reflects Skoda. "God has a way of preparing you. He makes you so weak and passive and peaceful. You're in a state of tranquility. It's sort of just like going over the hill."

Skoda feared he was near death several times, including once when a nurse, leaning over his bed, temporarily compressed the tube through which a mechanical respirator sent air into an opening into his throat and down into the lungs.

When he turned blue, the alarmed nurse tried to ask him what was wrong. "How could I tell her she was pinching my breathing tube?" he says now with a chuckle.

Skoda credits the nursing staff and his wife, Pat, who remained at his bedside throughout, with helping him through a harrowing experience in which the brain is alert and functioning but cannot command a single muscle.

Prayer

"I tried to fill my mind with prayer and the prettier places where I had fished and hunted in my life," he said. "I also listened to a radio night and day to keep from going nuts. I fought sleep because I would have some terrible nightmares about violence and death."

Gullain-Barre's syndrome has a mortality rate of up to 20% but in a patient completely paralyzed the chances of survival may be as little as one out of two.

"The cause is unknown," explained Dr. M. D. Reiss, associate clinical professor of neurology at Loyola University Medical School. "Some believe it is due to a virus but more likely it occurs as a post-infection, a hyperimmune or allergic response to an upper respiratory infection two or three weeks earlier."

Ordinarily, G-B paralysis starts at the feet and works upward but Skoda's case temporarily baffled doctors because it started at top and worked down.

"It came out of the blue," recounted Mrs. Skoda. "We were at a restaurant and Roger said, 'I see two martinis, two waitresses. I see two of everything.' I thought he just needed a change of glasses."

The next morning I was called at my job. An ambulance was taking Roger to the hospital. He had lost his equilibrium and was bouncing off the wall."

Intensive Care

The paralysis progressed and within two days he was transferred to the intensive care unit, where he remained for the next 90 days, probably a hospital record.

Each day on her arrival at the hospital Mrs. Skoda went through an organ check list with her husband. If the answer to the question "Do you hurt?" was an eyeballed "yes", she had to find out where. She started at the feet and worked upward.

Skoda has taken a driver's license exam and now drives to work and his trice-weekly physical therapy sessions.

He dresses himself, although it requires an extra hour and gadgets like a button hook.

The only deficiency Skoda expects to be left with is a scar from the tracheotomy. "It looks like a belly button," he observed. "Elizabeth Taylor has the same thing. If it's good enough for her, it's good enough for me."

Phnom Penh Battles Rage; U.S. Promises Continued Aid

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Government troops battled hand to hand on Thursday with Communist-led insurgents who despite American air attacks fought their way into a town southeast of Phnom Penh.

Thailand-based U.S. fighter-bombers swept over the capital continually during the day on their way to pound the insurgents, who also cut a strategic highway behind the city's defense lines.

The U.S. Congress has imposed an Aug. 15 deadline for halting American air support in Cambodia. Informed sources in Phnom Penh said an estimated 3,000 relatives of top government officials and wealthy businessmen have left for Paris, Hong Kong and Thailand as the insurgents tighten their noose around Phnom Penh.

Army commander Maj. Gen. Sostene Fernandez and Phnom Penh's police chief are among those who have evacuated their families from this beleagured city of three million, the sources said.

The White House said in Washington that the United States will continue to provide "all possible economic, diplomatic and military support" to the government. White House spokesman Gerald L. Warren said that after the Aug. 15 deadline "We will do whatever is possible under the law."

The Communist-led forces infiltrating government defense lines in Cambodia cut the highway south of Phnom Penh and shot their way into the town of Deyeth, 13 miles southeast of the capital.

The hand-to-hand fighting there was reported by the Phnom Penh military command's chief spokesman, Col. Am Rong. No details were available on the size of the government or insurgent forces or on casualties.

The route cut by the attack was Highway 1. The fighting was two miles behind the government's defense lines. Field reports said refugees were fleeing toward the capital.

Also on the southeastern defense perimeter, government troops tried to blast rebel infiltrators from the village of Robas Angkanh. The Communist-led forces overran the village Wednesday, apparently wiping out most of a militia company. About 100 government soldiers were reported missing.

Government troops pressed a counterattack Thursday against rebel forces around the devastated village of Prateah Lang, nine miles southwest of the capital, Rong said.

The spokesman gave no details of the fighting there.

Other fighting was reported at Muk Kampoul, six miles north of the city on an island in the Mekong River.

Shortly after dark Thursday, a volley of small-arms fire rang out in downtown Phnom Penh. The command did not give the circumstances of the shooting, which lasted for only a few seconds.

Fighting Wednesday was reported as close as six miles from Phnom Penh to the northeast at the village of Prek Ho. The government said an insurgents' attack there was repulsed.

Guards Get Shoot-To-Kill Orders

McAlester, Okla. (UPI) — — Rifle sharpshooters on rooftops and in guard towers Thursday were under shoot-to-kill orders to prevent more violence among 750 convicts roaming the yard at the Oklahoma State Prison.

Oklahoma Safety Commissioner Wayne Lawson said workers hoped to have cellblocks repaired by Friday and the convicts back behind bars. Maintenance crews worked around the clock to complete the job.

The rebellious convicts carried bricks, stones, concrete chunks and steel bars from the rubble of the prison set aflame last Friday by rioters. Four convicts were killed and an estimated $20 million damage was done.

"We're not going in there," said Capt. Jim Haney, National Guard information officer. "If we take four or five guys in there with weapons, they'll take them just like that."

Charles Palmer, 34, was slashed a reported 15 times by fellow convicts within view of guardsmen and highway patrolmen Wednesday, and his killer was among those roaming free in the yard. Authorities declined to risk lives in a ground-level charge "to rescue inmates who can't get along among themselves."

Wholesale Prices Register Big Drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices in July registered their biggest monthly decline in 25 years, but administration economists cautioned that the drop seems only temporary and apparently won't help the American consumer much.

"The decline . . . is a long way from the grocery shelf," said Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, in commenting on Labor Department statistics announced Thursday.

Secretary of the Treasury George P. Shultz was asked by Sen. William Proxmire at a hearing if he agreed that "it seems that the July wholesale price index is definitely not a trend and you can't rely on it as indicating inflation is under control." Shultz said he agreed this was correct.

The biggest decline was in farm prices, but Stein said many farm product prices "have now risen to exceed not only the July but even the June levels."

Wholesale prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds decreased 4.6 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis in July, the biggest single monthly decline ever.

The wholesale price index for all commodities dropped 1.4 per cent, the first decline since September of 1971 and the biggest decline since February of 1948.

The wholesale price index stood at 134.9 in July compared with the 1967 base figure of 100, and was 12.7 per cent above a year earlier.

Prices of industrial commodities increased one tenth of one per cent in July, after average increases of a full percentage point during the first six months of the year.

Stein attributed the July figures to the administration's June 13 price freeze and restrictions placed on exports of soybeans and other livestock feed components

"Both the influences were temporary," he said, and he predicted that the indexes will resume the trend of "fairly large" price increases for the next several months.

The Labor Department said it took its sample of wholesale prices on July 10, nearly a month after President Nixon's June 13 price freeze went into effect, and also after the administration imposed export controls on soybeans and some other commodities.

Although wholesale prices dropped sharply, especially at the farm level, Stein said the decline was temporary to result in price decreases at the retail level.

"There was a quite temporary decline in the price of corn and soybeans, which came up again," Stein said. He added that even if there were to be an impact on retail prices, it would be delayed a long time.

Nevertheless, while it didn't help consumers much, the one-month decline in the wholesale price index was welcome on paper to the administration, even if only for psychological reasons.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

What a way to die, with something as awful as the Berlin Wall as your most lasting memorial. Such was the fate of East Germany's Walter Ulbricht, post World War II communist boss in that country.

What Ulbricht actually did, however, was to prove that freedom is a most precious commodity among men, more precious even than life itself. And he helped to further cement the belief that something as abstract as an idea can be far stronger than something as real and solid as a concrete wall.

It was to once and for all eliminate the freedom of movement for East Germans that Ulbricht had to resort to the infamous Berlin Wall. And ever since the wall was completed it has stood as a symbol of man's love for freedom.

The freedom to freely move about is, perhaps, the most practiced freedom in the world. Very few are the nations of the world that must insist upon the physical presence of their citizens. Think for a moment how awful life would have to be for a nation to insist upon your physical presence.

It would mean that all the normal and natural things that tend to tie you to an area were overpowered by some negative force or factor. The natural love you have for the place where you were born, the place where you were raised and the place where your family relationships exist, all of these things would be negated if it were necessary to deny you your freedom of movement.

It would mean that there was something else pushing you to leave, to lay aside all your familiar surroundings, your friends, your family and a way of life with which you had become comfortable and secure. It is difficult for people as free as we are even to contemplate such a thing.

★

It would be a most oppressive political system that would take precedence over so many and such varied personal preferences. It is not that mobility is bad in itself; some people, in fact, even thrive upon it.

There are those who like moving from one place to another, some even to new countries. Many Americans have elected to live in Europe, Asia, Canada, South America and other parts of the world.

But they have done so, except in the case of those who left this country to avoid military duty during the Vietnam war, as a matter of free choice. They have found more things to tie them to another land than existed for them in this country.

The people of East Germany were leaving after World War II, not from choice, but from sorrow, fear and disappointment. They left because they felt they were being denied their dignity and an opportunity to live as they largely desired.

★

We take for granted our right to go and to do as we please but Ulbricht in death, as he did in life, reminds us how precious that right really is. It is one of the principles of our democracy that have even rarely been in any way threatened.

For most of us, the vast majority of the nation, our freedom of movement has never in the slightest been infringed upon. It is our choice and ours alone to go wherever we want, including leaving the country if that would be our wish.

We lay a lot of store in the material things of this life that we can feel, touch, smell or experience in some tangible fashion but the ideas and ideals of mankind are what has really sustained civilization throughout the ages. Ulbricht never intended it but his most noted "achievement" was to emphasize the spirit and inherent nature of human freedom.

RICHARD L. WORSNOP

The Babe Still Immortal Even If Record Topped

WASHINGTON—Of all the golden figures of the Golden Age of Sports, Babe Ruth of the New York Yankees had no peer. He was a 24-carat hero as far as the public was concerned, and never mind the competing claims to fame of Bill Tilden, Johnny Weissmuller, Bobby Jones, Jack Dempsey, and Red Grange. He was the Bambino, the Sultan of Swat. When he finally retired in 1935, after 22 years in the major leagues, he had set or equalled 76 batting and pitching records.

Three of those records once seemed unassailable. As a pitcher for the Boston Red Sox in the the 1916 and 1918 World Series, Ruth set a mark of 29 2/3 consecutive scoreless innings, Whitey Ford of the Yankees topped that in the 1961 Series by pitching 32 scoreless innings in a row.

Okay. But Ruth's over-all reputation rests on his prodigious home-run output. His 60 homers in 1927 — more than were hit by any other team in the American League that year — were not exceeded until 1961, when Roger Maris of the Yankees hit 61.

☆ ☆ ☆

Ruth himself once remarked that he thought his career record of 714 homeruns would probably stand forever. But now even that mark, the most famous in baseball, seems doomed to fall. The Atlanta Braves' Hank Aaron, who had a career total of 700 homers as of July 30, is considered a sure bet to belt No. 715 either this season or next.

Ruth ended his baseball career on a triumphant, yet sad and anti-climatic note. The Yankees traded him to the hapless Boston Braves after the 1934 season. As the 1935 season began, Ruth found that "It was more and more of an effort to run down to first base. My old dogs just couldn't take it any longer."

But then, as he recalled, ". . . for one day in Pittsburgh I again was the old Babe Ruth. For one brief day I again wore the crown of the Sultan of Swat. For only the fourth time in my career I drove out three home-runs, including the only ball that ever was driven over the right-field roof at Forbes Field." Those were Nos. 712, 713, and 714. Ruth started one more game, but retired after a few innings with a charley horse. He never played another.

☆ ☆ ☆

Aaron is under intense pressure as he nears Ruth's career record, and so was Maris when he bore down on the single-season mark. Since both records are viewed as virtually sacrosanct, Maris and Aaron are regarded as interlopers by many old-time baseball fans. The point is made that Ruth's 1927 record was set in a 154-game season, while Maris had 162 games to work with. Moreover, Ruth came to bat 8,399 times during his career, while Aaron has been at more than 11,000 times to date.

Aaron is well aware of these arguments. "When they talk about home-runs," he says, "they'll say Babe Ruth, Henry Aaron in that order — that is, if I can get the record . . . I don't think I'll get nearly the acclaim that came along with his home-runs. The public as a whole will always remember Babe Ruth."

Baseball columnist Leonard Koppett asserts that "If Aaron hits 715 homers, or 713 or 800 or never hits anouther, he will have earned every single one. And if someone after Aaron hits still more, he'll have earned them, too."

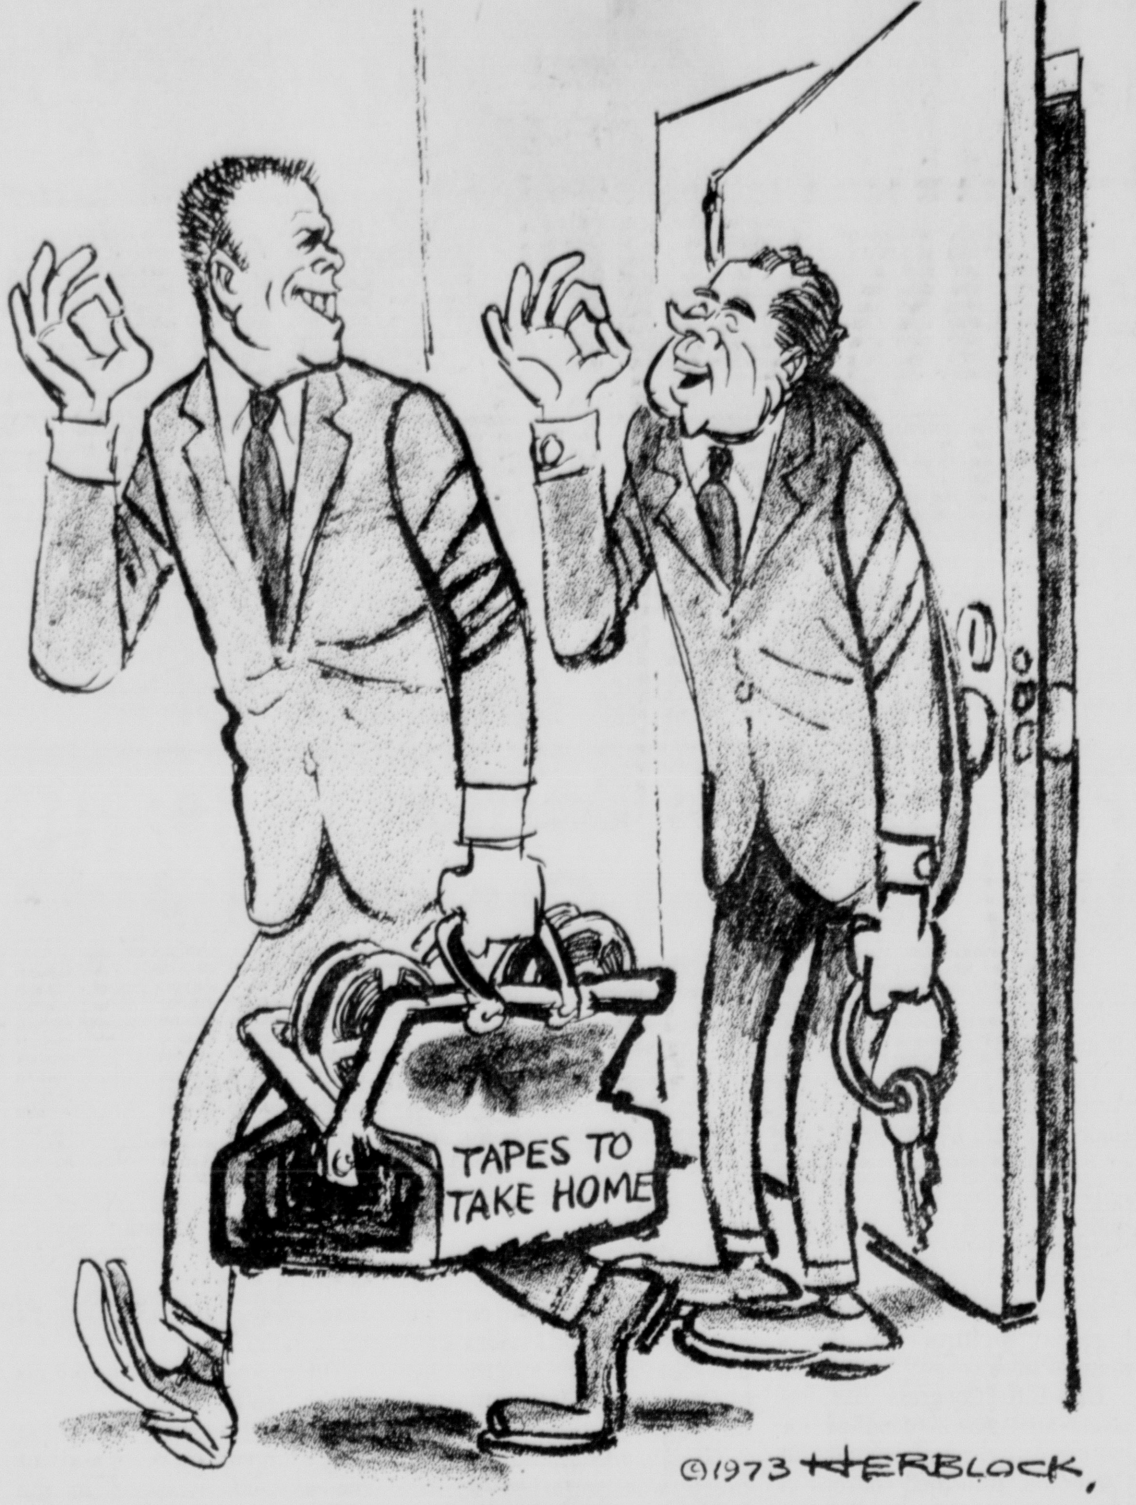
'Not At All — It's A Privilege'



Not Nixon's Doing

Elsewhere on this page yesterday, New York Times Columnist James Reston looked at the bigger world picture in national political affairs and found the Nixon administration wanting. In many significant ways, Reston is right but in one significant way he is wrong.

While Nixon has performed admirably in new and improved relations with the Soviet Union and The People's Republic of China, he has suffered a decline in relations with much of Western Europe and with Japan. He has not been as internationally skilled in all affairs as he has been with the communist world.

And there are many reasons for this, not the least of which is the President's failure to bring into his administration men of high stature, principle and experience. Also, he has brought in men who have been shown through Watergate to be men of political expediency rather than statesmen.

And as Reston noted, international monetary affairs as they relate to the U.S. are in disarray and seemingly getting worse. Our economic power in the world is far less today than it was when Nixon assumed office.

But when Reston speaks of relative military slippage in the world by the U.S., he ought to talk about the "narrow little band of willful men" in the Congress rather than the group he talks about in the Nixon administration.

It has not been the Nixon administration which has pushed and pulled in all directions to sacrifice this nation's military superiority, but rather, single-minded individuals in Congress and mostly in the Democratic party.

In the ranks of Democratic liberals has come the big effort to cut defense spending and to bring our troops home from Europe. In those same ranks has come the effort to use domestic scandals as a cloak for weakening the military powers of the President.

If we are not performing as we should in military preparedness, it is not the fault of Nixon. It is the fault of those men in Congress who have never been able to see the relationship between peace in the world and an unquestioned ability to defend yourself.

Reston is right to be concerned over the situation but he ought to direct his remarks in the right direction.

City Hall Trickery?

According to the opponents of the Northeast Radial, trickery is now a way of life in city government. And it is through trickery that the city now intends to stuff down the throats of the people of Lincoln the proposed new arterial that has, so far, been denied it in other ways.

Overall, our total reaction to that is one of disgust. It is fairly plainly stated that in developing an entrance into Mahoney Park from 70th and Fremont, the city is laying the groundwork for the radial, since the radial would run from that point through the park.

The only trouble is that the radial through the park and the plans for entrance to the park have been a part of city plans longer than organized opposition to the radial has been in existence. Thus, the city isn't trying to trick anyone but is merely doing what it has long planned to do.

Also, the opponents of the radial ought to look at the history of this project. If they did, they would find that it was foot-dragging in City Hall that has constantly delayed the project and northeast citizen interest that has sought to move the project off of dead center.

Now, it is said that the city would resort to any form of dishonor to get the radial built. The truth is that there has been no decision to build the radial and such a decision may never be made, regardless of the efforts of the opponents of the radial.

City Hall has been and remains loaded with people who think the radial is a boondoggle, that it would cost too much money and that it is not essential. When it comes to not liking the Northeast Diagonal, the Coalition Against the Radial is a Johnny-come-lately.

Now it is also perfectly true that the mayor and City Council, once a pending traffic needs study is completed, might make a decision to proceed with the radial. And it is also true that such a decision might represent the majority feeling of the people of Lincoln.

But that it would represent a trick of some kind is an unwarranted attack. Diagonal opponents ought to keep in mind that the merits of the program could as easily defeat them as anything else.

The Great Howcum

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower used to have a benign "enemies list" of his own. Whenever somebody irritated him, he would write that person's name on a scrap of paper, crumple it up and throw it in a bottom drawer, thereby ridding himself of what later came to be called hangups.

When Sen. Sam Ervin observed on "Face the Nation" last weekend: "Down in North Carolina, we say — 'Howcum'?" His remark sent me to my bottom drawer where I keep my crumpled-up howcums.

Howcum the lack of investigation of massive vote frauds in the 1960 Kennedy-Nixon campaign has never been called a "cover-up"?

Howcum John Dean's flat assertion under oath that "I planted no stories" received no refutation from the dozens of people with whom Dean and his lawyers planted stories?

Howcum there has been no clamor to investigate the investigations inflicted on the 1968 Nixon-Agnew campaign?

Howcum people usually sensitive to ethnic or religious slurs feel free to disparage "the Germans" in the White House, and like to identify Haldeman and Ehrlichman as Christian Scientists when they identify no other witness' religious affiliations?

☆ ☆ ☆

Howcum it is laudable to raise funds to ransom Cubans recruited to land at the Bay of Pigs, but terrible to raise funds for "support and lawyers fees" to Cuban-Americans who broke into the Watergate? (This howcum collapses under examination of motive, but it has a certain symmetry.)

Howcum those rightly indignant at unfair prying into the private lives of public figures have shown no interest in the anti-Republican snooping activities of Carmine Bellino, as brought out into the open by George Bush?

Howcum it was right for the Internal Revenue Service to hand over tax returns to a Kennedy investigator, without so much as a written request, when it is wrong for Nixon investigators to even breathe the initials "I.R.S."?

Howcum the wrath of civil libertarians so properly aimed at the recent misuse of government power to "get" individuals never managed to get cranked up (with the lonely exception of Wayne Morse) at the misuse of government power by Robert Kennedy to "get" Jimmy Hoffa?

Howcum nobody is asking now what "foreign intelligence reasons" were given for the unconscionable tapping of Martin Luther King's telephone, or about the propriety of F.B.I. agents seeking to leak contents of those tapes to newspaper editors?

Howcum Daniel Schorr of C.B.S., who as the subject of F.B.I. harassment has more reason than any other reporter to be angry at this administration, has been reporting the Ervin hearings with restraint and insight, while Carl Stern of N.B.C. has felt free to indulge his biases?

Howcum Bob Haldeman, who was supposed to be so efficient, never arranged for the taping of presidential conversations aboard the yacht Sequoia? (Maybe this howcum came out of the wrong drawer.)

Howcum the incredible similarity of the devotion of Gordon Liddy and Daniel Ellsberg to a "higher law" has led to one's lionization and the other's incarceration?

☆ ☆ ☆

Howcum the people who are so irate about our secret bombing of North Vietnamese sanctuaries near the Cambodian border never so much as waggle a finger at North Vietnamese troops for assembling on Cambodian soil in the first place?

Howcum the scoffers who were so certain that the Vietnam cease-fire would not last longer than a few weeks, are not admitting they may have been wrong after six months?

Howcum the report that President Johnson surreptitiously taped conversations with George Wallace has raised not a single eyebrow?

That cleans out my howcum drawer. An even longer list could be tellingly directed at the Nixon administration, but these accumulated resentments are presented to suggest that much of what appalls us today has its roots in the callousness or apathy of too many of us in the past.

The Great Howcum, as they call it down in North Carolina, is this: Howcum we cannot agree to apply a single standard to political morality, and as we try to raise that standard together, to admit that nobody has the perfect right to cast the first stone?

Education For Peace

In a time when war has dominated the front pages, and now when political ills are doing the same, it's refreshing to learn that a group of educators under the wing of the National Education Association has taken a serious look at a matter too long ignored as an academic discipline.

The NEA-sponsored scholars, as a result of their study, have published "Education for Peace: Focus on Mankind," as the yearbook of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, an NEA affiliate.

In it, they took a look not only at the direct violence that accompanies war and other devastating human conflict, but also the subtle violence that plagues societies from within in the form of poverty, racism, repression and other societal ills.

It was an ambitious task.

In fact, says George Henderson of the University of Oklahoma, "Several times we came close to quitting — it seemed futile to dream of peace." Henderson, chairman of the study group, is a professor of education and sociology.

No wonder the task seemed futile.

An NEA summary of the published volume notes that 130 of the last 160 years have been accompanied by war somewhere in the world.

American forces have been involved in active military operations in all but 20 years of U. S. history.

Americans under 35 cannot remember absence of war or its threat.

Killing from the air has increased civilian casualties, the study notes, from as few as five per cent in World War I to 70% in Vietnam to an estimated 99% in a nuclear war.

Thus it's clear that as a percentage of total casualties in modern conflicts, noncombatants make up the vast majority.

Turning to other forms of violence, the group concluded that the U. S. is the most violent of Western nations. It's here, they said, that violence is "taught" as a solution.

☆ ☆ ☆

The picture provided by the NEA group is not very pretty.

But even more disturbing is the conclusion — indictment, perhaps — that the group made about education and its role as a "major instrument of national policy which included support of the war system."

Education, as an institution, has "buttressed an established order intent upon preserving traditional patterns of nationalism in a world undergoing convulsive social change," said the scholars.

In colleges and academies across the world, "the theory and practice of rational and strategic killing can be studied and taught," they concluded.

And then, they asked, "where is the peace system and its colleges?"

And where, they asked again, is peace as a behavioral goal of education?

For teachers, parents and other adults, the NEA educators asked: "How can we help our children to achieve a trusting and confident view of life and the future in spite of some dreadful aspects of present-day existence?"

☆ ☆ ☆

To help answer that question, they suggested first that education for peace should be "education for conflict resolution" since peace should be defined as the nonviolent management of tension and conflict rather than the absence of such phenomena.

They suggested a study of what they called "structural violence," the kind that lowers life expectancy among the poor in America or the destitute in underdeveloped nations.

And they urged more "one world" education that puts aside purely national ambitions.

Then, they said, education should develop respect for other cultures, including study of other languages.

And finally, they said, teachers must be agents of change, appreciating the value of "those few persons who dare to strike boldly at the roots of evil while the rest of us passively look on."

"The issues of peace and war are complex," they noted, "and cannot be solved by followers of conformist thinkers."

Education for peace, they said, must look beyond the classroom.

"The heart of the matter," said the study, "is to bring the political process into the main line of education, so that we cultivate the sophisticated understanding of political power that is required of citizens if democracy in this country is to survive."

Thus, they said, young people should be taught to use power to end war and other forms of violence.

That's the kind of charge that may not be very popular with either teachers or parents or other adults in communities around the country.

But it's the sort of courageous assignment that ought to give us hope that, in a confused and disturbed world, we will find educators in the forefront of problem-resolution.

Watergate Hearings

Lincoln, Neb.

Daily I read other people's opinions and I am more and more amazed at the number of people who are against the Senate Watergate TV hearings. Perhaps these hearings are a mixture of all the complaints they have against them, but I for one am grateful for the opportunity to watch each one's account of what took place and then do some judging for myself. I'd rather do this than rely on a reporter's account of court hearings and piecemeal interviews.

It is not only a delight but a comfort to watch these senators perform this duty for our country. They are very learned men and their states must be proud of them. Each attacks the questioning from a different angle and brings out a point another has missed. It fascinates me.

As for the hearings making the U.S. look bad in the eyes of the world, nothing surely could be further from the truth. For what demonstrates democracy more than a country willing to right a wrong-doing, regardless of where it may lead (for these are live, not edited on tape) with the whole world looking in. Isn't this one of the things of which America boasts?

The cover-ups in the Vietnam war are still coming to us from all sides. We should scream with indignation. How dare we, the people, be kept in the dark about what our leaders are doing in our name? And these same patriotic leaders condemn the young men who left this country to escape being used by them.

I had three sons who enlisted — two went to Vietnam. Never will I blame the men who left this country for my sons being sent to Vietnam. Nor should they be blamed for all those who gave their lives. Put the blame where it belongs.

And seeing that the Preisdent wants to assume complete authority over all things, then I say, let him also take all the blame. I voted for him, praying that he would quickly end that sickening war, but it took him four long years, just in time for the next election. What perfect timing!

People say to me, well, look at his accomplishments such as his visits to China and Russia. That was no big deal — I was ready to do that years ago.

My prayer is that these Senate hearings give back to the American people a respect for politics and politicians, by exposing what is wrong and then trying with all their combined intelligence and moral integrity to correct it.

A big "thanks" is due the senators for keeping their brilliant sense of humor through this ordeal.

The Web

Lincoln, Neb.

It can be theorized that the Ellsberg burglary accomplished an objective. One familiar with the law beforehand would know the effect such an act would have on the trial then in progress. And Daniel Ellsberg was set free without further ado . . . ?

A select few of the oil companies have been granted exploration rights off the coast of South Vietnam . . . ?

A person whose name has been acclaimed as a household god and who is allegedly nonpolitical is sponsoring legislation through a powerful senator . . . ?

A "crusading" columnist writes now of things past or such trivia as a dog riding in a car. Can it be that with the removal of "the aides," his pipeline was severed . . .?

The weaving of the web continues.

Honest People

Pawnee City, Neb.

Last week while attending the Table Rock festival, this incident occurred.

My 11-year-old daughter went to buy a toy animal. In doing so, she mistakenly gave the lady a five-dollar bill instead of a one. Later she noticed what she had done. Broken-hearted, she thought she was out four dollars.

We went back to the stand, only to find that it had closed. A young carnival employe noticed her tears and asked if he could help. I explained what had happened and he took us to the man in charge, who said that the lady at the stand had noticed the mistake but my daughter had gone before she could catch her. Another little girl who knew my daughter offered to take the money to her. "No," she said. "She will be back."

Sure enough, we did return, got her four dollars and mended the broken heart.

It makes one feel good to see that in this world of fast living, there are still good, honest carnival people.

Downtown Park

Lincoln, Neb.

The downtown lots owned by the city near 15th Street would make an excellent downtown park. The only thing resembling a downtown park is the small patch of ground at 10th and O.

There are two compatible office buildings near the Capitol and their owners may in time see the advantage of selling them to the state for office buildings and moving their businesses farther out. Thus the problem of extra state office space could be solved without a new $20 million building.

These buildings should never, under proper zoning, have been constructed as close as they were to the Capitol. The chances are, with the utilization of computer equipment, the needs for state office space will decrease.

Lincoln has needed a downtown park for many years and the area at 15th, while not large, could be made attractive.

Banks Differ In Response To Home-Loan Situation

By JIM PRATT
Star Staff Writer

Several Lincoln banks pretty much agree the unstable monetary situation in the country has not forced them to stop making real estate loans, though some say they have cut back a little and others say they haven't made such loans for some time.

Doug Alford, vice president in charge of the mortgage loan department at the National Bank of Commerce, said they still are making such long-term loans.

However, he said, "We have not been a major factor in home loan financing." And this is an area where people may be discovering money is not as available as it used to be, he added.

But Alford also said, "We're not to the place where we are turning down loans."

Not Enough Money

An Omaha bank, Northside Bank, was reported to have completely stopped making real estate loans, at least for now. The reason given by bank president Joseph Hart Jr. was there simply wasn't enough money in the bank for long-term loans, a situation he was quoted as saying was prevalent in many banks.

Gateway Bank vice president Jim Kruger spoke for several local banks when he said, "Ours isn't to that point. We're just being a little more restrictive in the ones we do make."

Kruger went on to say Gateway never did make very many real estate loans.

"We're making a few of them — not any more today, or any less, than we were a month ago."

No Decrease

John Lofgren, loan officer at City National Bank, concurred. "We're still making a few of them," he explained, adding, "on kind of a selective basis. But there hasn't been a decrease."

The executive vice president at West Gate Bank, Don Kelley, said his bank hasn't made any significant long-term loans so far this year.

"We're a relatively small financial institution," he remarked. "We've got a good volume of short-term loans so that we don't need real estate loans for now. I'd rather make 10 customers happy than one."

He said he had not solicited any real estate loans for about a year and a half.

Jerry Holscher, a vice president in the mortgage loan division of First National Bank, said, "We have not shut off our lending policies as of this date anyway."

And he said he had not heard of any bank or savings and loan association in Lincoln which had done so.

Some Back Off

"I know some (savings and loan associations) have backed off of the higher risk loans," he said, "but to my knowledge nobody has stopped making real estate loans."

Holscher said there is money available in Lincoln though it is higher priced than it was two months ago.

"The cost of funds has gone up and that's the reason for interest rates going up," he explained.

He reiterated, "We have not made a decision to shut off making real estate loans." Holscher described the monetary situation here as stable, at least until the supply of funds catches up with the demand.

UNL Is Offering 119 Acres For Sale

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln is offering 119 acres of land for sale at two locations in east Lincoln as another step in the long range plan to move certain field and animal research activities from the Agronomy Farm to the Agricultural Field Laboratory at Mead.

Sealed bids for the six parcels must be submitted by Aug. 20 to Richard Bennett, director of special business services at the university.

Five parcels of land containing a total of 107 acres are located west of the new Mahoney Park. The land adjoins No. 70th Street on the west, the Rock Island Railroad tracks on the north, and Adams Street on the south.

All tracts are zoned A-2, single family residential except a 5-acre tract on the northeast corner of 70th and Adams which includes one acre zoned G commercial.

The sixth tract is located on O Street at approximately 72nd, east of the Missouri Pacific Railroad tracks. The tract contains 12 acres and is zoned A-1 and A-2, single family residential.

Persons interested in submitting bids may obtain instructions and legal descriptions of the tracts by contacting Richard Bennett, director of special business services, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Man Charged With Robbery Of Gas Station

A Providence, R.I., man has been charged in Lancaster County Court in connection with an armed holdup at Dick's Texaco Service Station at the Interstate 80-U.S. 77 interchange.

James McEnery, 20, was arraigned on a charge of robbery. A preliminary hearing date was slated for Aug. 20 and bond was set at $8,000.

George M. Black, the attendant on duty at the station, told Lancaster County sheriff's deputies that a man with a rifle fled with about $200 to $300 from the station Monday night.

Lincoln Foundation Okays Loan To WICS

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Foundation board of directors Thursday approved a request for an $11,322 loan to Women in Community Service to permit WICS to meet a fiscal emergency during the next three months at its home for girls in Lincoln.

The board also gave its approval to grant applications totaling $22,400 from three other community organizations.

Most of that amount, $20,000, will go to the Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs and the People's City Mission to permit continued development of programs aided previously with Foundation start-up funds.

Aid Hoped For

Those organizations had hoped they could count on federal funds or more funds from contributions to the Lincoln-Lancaster United Fund, but failure to meet United Fund goals has cut into Lincoln Community Services (LCS) abilities to finance the added amounts this, and federal cutbacks have taken a similar toll.

For the WICS home for girls, the loan will permit continued operations during a three-month interim period pending action on grant requests from other sources.

The girls residence at 1935 D provides a structured and supervised living situation for girls from economically or environmentally deprived backgrounds.

The Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs was granted $10,000 for continued development of its drug abuse program. Another $10,000 went to the City Mission to allow it to continue operation of its Emergency Family Shelter.

A smaller amount, $2,400, was granted the Nebraska Human Resources Research Foundation to finance a two-day staff development program for counselors.

Seward Comments

Foundation Board President Harry Seward, commenting on the largest grants, noted that Lincoln Foundation philosophy has been to award start-up grants, but to stay clear of grants for operating purposes after programs are under way.

He also noted, however, that with federal program changes a "new situation" has been created and some continuation funding may be necessary for programs which have been aided by start-up grants in the past.

In other matters, the board voted to grant the Lincoln YMCA $15,000 for its capital fund drive with the understanding the grant will be withheld until the Y meets its $600,000 goal.

Seward said the grant would aid the drive for the "salvation of the YMCA," which has been experiencing financial difficulties prompted by a huge capital debt.

Jack Wells, a board member who has been associated with the YMCA drive, said the Y will make its goal, probably within a few days.

Activities Banned

The board also decided to prohibit religious or political activities in the Foundation garden, a "people's park," under construction just west of the Lincoln Center Building.

And, as a tentative decision, it declared the small park off-limits to sale of merchandise, even though some board members urged permitting nonprofit organizations to conduct sales there for charitable purposes.

The board will review that decision at a later date if it appears advisable.

The park is to be dedicated during the week of Oct. 14.

Shortage Noted

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — There is a nationwide shortage of toilet bowls.

"It's serious. New construction could be delayed and finished projects unusable because of this shortage," said Robert K. Widdicombe, executive vice president of the Home Builder's Assn. of Greater Chicago.

Not Copper Knickers

NEW DELHI (AP) — The New Delhi city government did no favors to Polish astronomer Copernicus by naming a street in observance of the 500th anniversary of his birth. First, local radio announcers pronounced it "Copernicious Road." Then people caught onto the new name and it came out something like "Copper Knickers Road." It was Copernicus who figured out that the earth revolves around the sun.

Legal Aid Director, Hamilton, Resigns

Bruce Hamilton

The director of Lincoln Legal Aid Society, H. Bruce Hamilton, has announced his resignation, effective Sept. 1.

Hamilton, who has served as director for the past three years, will enter into private law practice with Douglas German, also a former Legal Aid Society attorney.

Commenting that the work with the legal aid organization has been challenging, Hamilton noted that during his tenure with the program, 3,500 low income residents of Lancaster County have received legal services at no cost.

Scope Grows

The scope of the program has grown, from a staff of three attorneys in November 1970 to seven in 1973.

Although the size of the staff has increased, the success of the attorneys has been mixed, he said.

"We all too frequently find that our governmental leaders are not concerned with the problems of the low income citizens, as the poor are politically and economically powerless. Thus the politicians believe they can safely be ignored," he said.

Discrimination

Hamilton said he has reached "the inescapable conclusion that our economic system and our governmental process promulgate inequality" and that low income and minority groups are discriminated against.

"The simple fact is," Hamilton stated, "the poor are powerless. When one group has power and another does not, the powerless group is unjustly treated."

Although more needs to be done to assist low income people, he said Lincoln is a "fine community."

A new director of the program will be named in the near future, he said.

Construction Booming During Month Of July

It's no secret that summer is the heart of the construction season — and July proved to be no exception.

During that month a total of 286 building permits were issued by the city building inspections division.

Of that number, 121 permits were taken out for construction of single family homes, totaling $1,725,335. Four permits totaling $87,225, were issued for new duplexes.

Only two permits for new apartment buildings were issued during July, for a total of $242,664.

Three permits were taken out for new industrial structures, two permits for office and professional buildings and one permit each for a new store and service station.

Twenty-one permits were registered for residential garages, 14 for other non-residential buildings and one permit for a new church.

A total of 180 permits were issued for new buildings, at an estimated cost of $2,876,671. Additions to structures picked up 37 permits, for $182,468, while alterations to existing buildings required 69 permits, totaling $607,246.

The 286 permits issued during the month of July added up to $3,666,385 worth of construction.

Of that amount, the building inspections division picked up $9,897.25 in fees.

Additionally, the division issued 11 permits for construction out in the county, totaling $1,776,863.

Senate Passes Veto Override Of Hospital Bill

Washington (AP) — The Senate voted Thursday to override President Nixon's veto of a bill that would prevent the administration from closing eight Public Health Service hospitals.

The vote was 77 to 16, more than the necessary two-thirds.

Passage of the override sent the bill, vetoed by Nixon on Wednesday, to the House, where leaders are expected to delay the vote until after Congress returns Sept. 5 from a recess scheduled to start Friday.

Nebraska Senators Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, both Republicans, voted against the override attempt.

Convention Site

White Oak, Okla. (AP) — American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders are considering holding next year's national convention here, it was disclosed.

Cardwell Named

Washington (UPI) — President Nixon has nominated James B. Cardwell to be new commissioner of Social Security. Cardwell, 51, a career civil servant from Rockville, Md., will succeed Robert M. Ball, who resigned, in the $38,000-per-year job.

Spirit of London — A cool sunny morning off the coast of British Columbia. Bound for Yukon on the British cruise ship "Spirit of London."

It's country I've seen and know nothing about — though my grandfather could recite "The Shooting of Dan McGrew", nobly and with great emotion.

We are making a short TV movie. Something else I know nothing about.

The board in front of you — Click-Clack. "Take four."

At this point words fail me. My mouth opens. Nothing comes out — except the sweat on the upper lip.

Many patient sighs. "All right. Let's try it again."

☆ ☆ ☆

I said to the camera people: "You wouldn't have a little cooking sherry, would you?"

They said: "Have a glass of water. They're a little touchy about having liquor in this part of the picture."

I said: "I could hide it under the bed."

Click-Clack! "Take five."

We actors earn our pay.

☆ ☆ ☆

My grandfather cleared his throat and said: "Back of the bar in a solo game sat Dangerous Dan McGrew."

The poems of Robert W. Service were all the thing. Men who had been in the gold rush to the Yukon were in social demand. Most of them had seen the shooting of Soapy Smith, naturally.

(A skeptic author says: "If all the men who claim to have seen the shooting of Soapy Smith were laid end to end, the line would extend to the Equator and back again.")

Actually, Service wrote "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" before he ever set foot in the Klondike. A lecturer of the day who brought out this point was nearly lynched by the audience.

The spell of the north lingers on, and cruise ships are mostly full. "The Spirit of London" has a capacity list of eight hundred.

My second time on this big white British liner. I brought the youngest girl child. At 12 years, they suddenly have a closetful of long dresses for formal evenings.

(But they still throw their pajamas on the floor in the bathroom.)

I said: "Pick them up! Pick them up! And put the cap back on the toothpaste!

She said: "Can I go swimming now?"

I said: "In the swimming pool. For heaven's sake, don't fall overboard."

Raising children is for heroic types.

Croissants and coffee for breakfast. I get to the typewriter early. A nervous Joe.

Don Marquis — (he wrote the archy and mehitabel things) — said: "Writing a daily column is like digging a daily grave."

I said: "Don't ask me for money now. I'm working to keep us out of the poorhouse."

She said: "It's only a dollar."

I pulled the paper out of the typewriter and threw it in the waste basket. She beat it. When I pull out the paper, it's a sign I'm going mad. The Creature from the Black Lagoon. Eeeeeeek!

Calm and cool days at sea. The passage to Alaska is smooth at this time of year. The green coast is close alongside.

The girl child came in and went in the bathroom. When she left I went in and picked up the towel off the floor

I decided to stop grave digging and went up to the Union Jack bar.

"Same as usual?" said the bartender.

"Make it double," I said.

Artists Getting Feel For True Pioneer Life

Group Stops In To Visit NWU Students At Stuhr

By KEN GRAY
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Grand Island — "Finding out that there are people in Nebraska who are artists that really love the state and are trying to express it," is what Nebraska Through the Eyes of Artists is all about, according to Sandy Bronson.

Ms. Bronson, who plans to teach art in elementary schools, was one of a group of 14 taking part in a three-week summer workshop with Dr. Gene Harding, senior fellow of Centennial College at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

The group stopped at the Stuhr Museum of the Prairie Pioneer to join Prof. Roger Welsch of Nebraska Wesleyan University and his pioneer seminar group for a pioneer meal of stew and switzel, and an evening of pioneer songs in front of the Wesleyan groups 1857 log cabin.

Dressed in overalls and dusty boots, Welsch lectured in the museum's auditorium on sodhouse architecture in Nebraska. Using slides for illustration, Welsch explained that sod building began on the Nebraska prairies around 1860, due to the lack of wood, and continued in some areas up to World War II.

"The sodhouse developed into a first class piece of architectural technology," Welsch said, and is essentially more efficient and practical than a frame house, due to the absence of heating and cooling problems.

The Wesleyan professor, who has made extensive studies into Nebraska pioneer history, folklore and culture, said there are probably a thousand sodhouses still standing in the state.

Usual Practice

The usual practice was to pound stakes horizontally into the sod, cover the walls with chicken wire, and then "slap" commercial or homemade plaster or cement over the walls for improved looks and insulation.

The Wesleyan students are in the second session of a two-week seminar on the prairie life of the pioneers. Living, eating and learning in the log cabin setting along the Wood River south of Grand Island will provide "an opportunity to really get the feel "of what pioneer life was all about, Welsch said.

Jan Koelling, a Barneston teacher with Welsch's group, said a lot of what she learns during the seminar "is to take back to the (art) classroom."

"The emphasis I'm reaching for," she said, "is a one-to-oneness with nature."

Harding's group, which started its Nebraska tour Monday, began in Brownville, visiting with Nebraska artist Tom Palmerton. They also visited Peru, and watched the Tuesday sunrise from Indian Cave State Park.

The group has had some interesting experiences on their tour. In the town of Shubert (population: 231), one of the group set up a tripod in the middle of the street to take pictures of the bank.

STAR PHOTO

HARDING . . . doles out lemonade to help wash down the pioneer stew.

Rumor Spread

"This farmer stopped and watched us run around like crazy and take pictures," one of the group explained, and he came up to the man with the tripod, apparently mistaking them for state surveyors and said, "what are you guys going to do, move the town five miles south?" Soon, the word had spread around town. The "surveyors," however, left the town intact, if not a little shaken.

Other visits took them to Humboldt, Stella and Hebron, "Catherland" and Hastings. The members of the group are keeping journals, making drawings and taking pictures. Next week they will meet in Centennial College to "share their experiences" with one another.

Harding said the goal of the workshop has been to "provide as rich an opportunity as we can to fill in some gaps" in the recognition of Nebraska as a state filled with talent and culture.

"Seeing how other artists see Nebraska and how they tackle the problem of expressing their observations" has been the principle learning experience for Mrs. Katherine Swan, a Bartley art teacher.

Aside from the original goals, Harding said, the workshop's biggest success "has been the enthusiasm developed in looking at things creatively" and "getting some new insights into the kinds of people all around them."

"It's taught us most of all to be sensitive to things around us," Ms. Bronson said.

Golfer In Omaha Beats, Kicks Boy

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Police are looking for a golfer who beat and kicked an 11-year-old boy, apparently because the child pulled a green flag.

The boy, Allen Troy Sampson, told officers he was knocked down by a man in his 40s and kicked with a golf spiked-shoe. A cut on Sampson's foot required 17 stitches to close, police said. He also was treated for other bruises before being released from a local hospital

Sampson said he and two other friends were at the Miller Park Golf Course at about 7 p.m. Wednesday night when he pulled the flag.

He said a group of golfers approaching the green began yelling at them. Sampson told officers he then tried to put the flag back in the hole, but it fell out and he and his friends fled as the golfers gave chase.

Sampson said he was the only one caught. He said the man knocked him to the ground with several blows and then began kicking him.

Officers said the suspect apparently was scared away when a woman began yelling at him to leave the boy alone.

Police said they were trying to learn the identity of the golfer.

Doobie Brothers Won't Be At Fair

The Doobie Brothers, scheduled to kick off the 1973 Nebraska State Fair with a rock concert on Aug. 31 have cancelled their engagement, leaving the Fair Board with a sudden need for a show to start off the first 10-day fair.

"We have been informed that ill health of one of the lead singers has forced the group to cancel their engagement," explained Fair Manager Henry Brandt.

"We are very dissapointed and will make every effort to find another fine program for the opening Friday grandstand show," he said.

Advance ticket sales for the entertainment at the 10-day fair are above those of a year ago, according to Brandt.

Grandstand entertainment for the fair was to begin with the Doobie brothers on Aug. 31, Pat Boone Sep. 1-2, Sonny James Sept. 4-5, Charlie Pride Sept. 6-7, and stars from the Lawrence Welk Show Sept. 8-9.

Sen. Chambers Protests Airline's 'Rude' Treatment

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

State Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha has written the general manager of Delta Airlines to protest "rude, shabby and insulting treatment accorded me" in attempting to board a Delta flight in Florida last month.

Two Delta employes attempted to prevent Chambers from boarding an airliner because he was dressed in a black satin tank top shirt, Chambers said. They told him it violated Delta's "dress code for passengers."

Chambers was returning to Nebraska from West Palm Beach after attending a legislative conference sponsored by the Eagleton Institute on Politics.

Chambers said he was first told by a ticket man for Delta that he could not board the plane in a tank top shirt.

"However, having observed other passengers throughout the terminal more scantily and revealingly clad than I, I had to conclude the young functionary was more distressed by my black skin than my black shirt," Chambers wrote Delta's general manager.

Later, a Delta supervisor also told Chambers he would have to change shirts, but he later backed off after State Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell and a Washington state legislator confirmed that Chambers had arrived in Florida on a Delta flight in the same attire.

Later, on the flight home, Chambers said, a stewardess assured him that Delta had no dress code for passengers.

Chambers asked Delta officials to inform him of "Delta's true policy."

IRS Taking A Look At Packers

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—An official of the Internal Revenue Service in Omaha said Thursday the IRS is "taking a look at meat packers and who they are selling to."

James W. Friel, IRS economics stabilization manager, said his office is seeking to determine whether there have been violations of the beef price ceiling.

He said his office already has had to tell several packers and wholesalers that they were selling meat above the ceiling price.

Friel said persons or food stores purchasing meat at prices above the ceiling face possible IRS action.

"The ceiling price on most beef carcasses is 70 cents a pound," he said. "If they (stores) buy at 81 cents a pound they are in violation, even if the meat is sold at a loss."

"I also understand that quite a few of the custom slaughterers are doing a land office business and some of the beef is going to grocery stores," he said. "We're aware of what's going on. One of the things is that when you have only a few firms operating, this narrows our job."

He added: "We've got a lot of retailers which are paying a premium for meat. I feel that as we develop a few of these cases, we may subject them to the same penalty as the seller if they are selling above the ceiling."

The IRS official also said new cuts of meat which are showing up in some restaurants and hotels are coming under scrutiny.

He said there are some indications that these firms are selling bottom round steak as "gooseneck round," top round as "eye round" and New York strip as "thin line strip."

Legal Defenders Asked To Investigate Shooting

By United Press International

The executive director of the Nebraska Mexican-American Commission said Thursday the Mexican-American Legal Defense Organization based in San Francisco has been asked to investigate the shooting of a migrant farm worker from Texas.

Director Stan Porras also said the organization has been asked to provide an attorney for Leopoldo Veliz-Valdez, 17, who was shot by a Scotts Bluff County deputy sheriff and faces charges.

"We (the commission) don't have the funds to pay for legal services," Porras said. "So we had to turn to other organizations."

Veliz-Valdez is to be arraigned Friday on four charges filed in connection with a July 16 incident which Deputy Sheriff Bernie Clark said prompted him to shoot the youth.

Veliz-Valdez was charged with physical control of a vehicle while being drunk; assaulting Clark with intent to do great bodily harm; unlawfully operating a vehicle; and fleeing to avoid arrest.

Temperatures In State Like Mountains'

Mountain resort temperatures continued in Nebraska Thursday, setting at least two record low marks in the state.

North Platte, in reporting the state low of 47 degrees, bettered by three degrees the old low set in 1950.

Omaha, with a low of 53, was one degree lower than the old record of 54 set in 1950 on the same date.

Lincoln's low reading was just one degree above the record low of 52 set in 1927.

Daytime high temperatures remained in the 80s and 70s throughout the state Thursday. Slightly warmer weather is forecast for Friday.

Omahan Leaves $404,816 To Kentucky School

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP — Centre College announced Thursday it has received a $404,816 bequest from the will of an 1891 graduate of the school for use in educating indigent students.

The fund came from the will of the late David G. Wright of Omaha, Neb., and is to be used as an endowment, with interest from it to educate "as many indigent and deserving young men ... as the amount of said net income will permit," according to the will.

Wright died in 1950, but the money was held in a trust until the death of the last of his heirs, which occurred this year.

Ex-Nebraskan Heads Planning In S.E. Kansas

CHANUTE, Kan. (AP) — Former Nebraska planning official Ben R. Robinson has been named executive director of the newly organized Southeast Kansas Regional Planning Commission.

Representatives of the nine counties that make up the commission met here Wednesday and announced the group will base operations in Chanute.

Robinson, 29, is a native of Kansas City, Kan. For the last three years he has been employed by the Nebraska Office of Planning and Programs at Lincoln.

Richard Williams, Parsons city manager and commission secretary-treasurer, said Robinson's initial assignment will be to survey the problem of solid-waste disposal in the nine counties.

Man Dies In Hit-Run Accident

Omaha (UPI) — A Fremont man was killed early Thursday in a hit-run accident on the northwest outskirts of Omaha.

The victim was identified as Duane R. Kern, 41. He was dead on arrival at Methodist Hospital in Omaha. A hospital spokesman said the body later was taken to Douglas County Hospital for an autopsy.

The Douglas County sheriff's office said a motorcycle driven by Kern was in collision with a 1973 white over maroon automobile at the intersection of Highway 133 and State Street, shortly before 4 a.m.

Witnesses told deputies the driver of the car remained at the scene a short time after the accident, then left the scene.

He was still being sought at mid-day.

The death was the first recorded in Nebraska during August.

Curtis, Hruska Vote Against Wage Bill

Washington (AP) — Nebraska Republican Senators Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska voted against the compromise version of a bill raising the minimum wage to $2.20 an hour.

Abortion Foes Picket Doctors

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—A group of anti-abortion pickets walked Wednesday outside the new private offices of two physicians who have figured in the controversy over abortions at the University of Nebraska Medical Center. Regents on July 14 agreed to allow two full-time staff physicians, Drs. William Orr and Marvin Dietrich, to go on three-fourths time.

The action came after Medical Center Chancellor Robert Sparks said the two physicians wanted to have more time off so they could perform abortions off campus.

Regents recently adopted a policy limiting the number of abortions which could be done at the medical center, and saying physicians could be fired if they performed abortions outside the NU premises. They later said the possibility of dismissal applied only to fulltime staff doctors.

Dr. Orr said Wednesday the office is being remodeled at present. He said services which will be offered have not been fully determined, and there will be no further comment at this time.

A spokesman, James W. Rouse Jr., said students from five Catholic and two public schools attended a planning meeting. He said those taking part in the protest are housewives, mothers and people from various professions.

Plane Missing Over Atlantic Found In Omaha

Omaha (UPI) — The FBI said Thursday a small plane reported missing over the Atlantic Ocean three months ago has been located at Omaha's Eppley Airfield.

The FBI said it was investigating the case due to the possible interstate transportation of stolen property.

Agents said a man identified as Chuck Little was flying the Supercub when it took off from the Greensboro, N.C., airport the morning of May 5. Another plane later reported picking up a distress call.

A two-day Coast Guard search was fruitless.

The FBI said a man landed the plane at Eppley on June 20, had it tied down, but failed to return for it.

Abortion Data Revealed

A total of 187 abortions were performed in Nebraska between May 24 and June 30, according to the State Health Department.

The statistics were the first available after the 1973 Legislature enacted a law designed to control the number of abortions.

The law was passed after the U.S. Supreme Court ruling on the subject knocked out Nebraska's old abortion law.

The new law, which requires strict reporting of abortions by doctors, became effective May 24, the date of the first reports.

Of the total, 29 of the women were non-Nebraskans, according to the reports.

The average age of the women was 22.6 years. The marital status provision showed 94 single, 46 married, and 21 divorced. There were no indications on the other reports.

No complications were reported in the cases.

The Poet Is Photographed

Bt CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Al Husted, free-lance photographer and former public relations specialist with the Dick Cavett Show, was attracted to Nebraska by the presence of a diminutive poet — "Gaki" as he is affectionately called by those close to him, John Neihardt as he is known by those further removed.

During his ten-day stay in Nebraska, which began late last week, Husted is photographing Dr. Neihardt as he goes about his daily life — writing, welcoming visitors, sitting with his beloved dog, Jacquot.

The photographs — between three and four thousand of them — will provide the material for either a picture book about Nebraska's Poet Laureate, or a portfolio to be used for exhibition.

Noting that a couple of publishing houses have indicated an interest in the book idea, Husted said, "I don't know what form it will take, if indeed it will be a book.

"Certainly it's going to be a good portfolio," he continued, adding that he plans to do some exhibiting in New York two years hence.

When he left the Cavett Show last October and entered the field of free-lance photography, he had a number of subjects in mind; and, "Of the things I wanted to shoot, Neihardt was one."

He also intends to do a series of photos using a young New England poet, Richard Sewell, as his subject. "It will be interesting to compare a very young poet with Dr. Neihardt," he observed.

Although he has spent a good deal of time working in television public relations, he has had a long-standing interest in photography.

"Photography has always been a great love of mine. I've been a professional photographer on and off for quite awhile."

A native of Indiana, Husted began his career in Chicago where he worked for CBS as a producer-director.

Following a three-year tour of duty with the Army, he took up residence in New York. "That was where I wanted to work," he said, referring to the fact that it is a world communications center.

He was fortunate enough to land a job as head of public relations for the Johnny Carson "Tonight Show"; and, eventually, Carson took him on as his personal PR representative.

His introduction to Dr. Neihardt occurred several years ago when Dick Cavett brought his production crew to Omaha to tape a show with the poet.

"I had never heard of John Neihardt until Dick suggested that we come out here," he noted.

At the time of the taping, he familiarized himself with Neihardt-the-writer, reading a copy of the best-selling "Black Elk Speaks" in his hotel room. Of it, he said, "I was properly amazed by the caliber of writing.

"He's a real story-teller in the best tradition. He should have been a Greek."

Apparently, many who watched the Cavett interview with Dr. Neihardt agreed with Husted's assessment. He recalled that the general public's reaction to the show was "terrific."

"We received a great deal of mail," after the show he said, and most of it was from young people — a fact that undoubtedly would delight the perennially young Dr. Neihardt.

Outspoken about the personnel at ABC — who could never be convinced "that they had a 'gem' in the form of Cavett" — he added: "A couple of the more sensitive ABC executives told me they enjoyed it (the Neihardt show) very much. A number used it as another excuse in their campaign to get Cavett off the air and replace him with some Mickey Mouse performer."

When asked about the increasing national reputation of Dr. Neihardt, Husted stated that, in New York City, "the neighborhood bookstore I know can't keep enough Neihardt in stock.

"I think the nation will wake up to John Neihardt. I don't know how long it will take."

Meanwhile, Husted is doing his part to add to the exposure of the poet.

While in Lincoln, he has been doing mostly portrait work. This weekend, he will travel with Dr. Neihardt to Bancroft where he will add photographs of the sixth annual "Neihardt Day" — scheduled to take place Sunday — to his pictorial collection.

"The most exciting part will be when we get to Bancroft," he said. "The man and his attitudes will come out there."

Earlier this week — after several hours of photographing had been completed — Dr. Neihardt asked the photographer if the pictures had improved as the day progressed.

Upon receiving an affirmative answer, he queried further: "What's the reason they're getting better?"

"Because I know you better," Husted replied.

By Sunday, he'll undoubtedly be calling Dr. Neihardt "Gaki" too.

Neihardt Speaks Out

Dr. John Neihardt

"We're in a state of cultural anarchy. But I don't deplore. I just try to understand."

Looking at the world from the vantage point of 92 years of experience, Nebraska's Poet Laureate, John G. Neihardt, commented earlier this week on the way things are — and hinted at the way they should be.

"On one hand you have the space adventure, and on the other, in Washington you've got — what do you call that? — 'hell and high water.' And they're both expressions of the human spirit. It's not hopeless."

Despite a recent back injury which has caused a month-long pause in his writing (he is working on the second volume of his autobiography), Dr. Neihardt still greets visitors with a twinkle in his eye and a chuckle ever near at hand.

He is optimistic, even in the face of the "cultural anarchy" to which he referred, stating that he believes a break-up is necessary.

"We need a different type of society," he mused, indicating that he would favor a more rapid transition to a democratic type of socialism.

> "I don't deplore. I just try to understand."

"When in a bind, we socialize. Then we turn around and damn the socialists."

However, Dr. Neihardt does not have in mind the kind of system propounded by extremist ideologues and wild-eyed radicals. "It isn't a matter of ideology, it's a matter of necessity.

"I'm referring to the type of thing FDR brought about in 1932. He saved us by moving to the left. I didn't know if I liked him very well, but looking back, he was pretty good."

Revealing the fact that he was a member of the Socialist Party during the early 1900's, he had high words of praise for the Party's standard-bearer, Norman Thomas.

"He didn't hate people, he loved them."

And, stating that he had corresponded with Thomas, he added with a touch of pride in his voice: "He called me 'comrade.' "

Dr. Neihardt is also quick to state his affection for the members of younger generation. "I'm all for 'em," he said enthusiastically.

But, he also added a word of good-natured caution: "That doesn't mean they're all right. Time will take care of that."

Of his forthcoming book, which is "about three-fourths" completed, he said he believes it will be better than the preceding volume, "All Is But A Beginning," which was released last fall.

He spoke of some of the episodes that will be contained in the new book. One in particular caught his fancy as he talked — perhaps because he was addressing a newspaper reporter.

As Dr. Neihardt explained it, he, too, has sampled the life of a journalist. Moving from his home in Bancroft to Omaha at the age of 20, he went to work for the Omaha Daily News.

Covering the city hall beat, and writing features for the Sunday edition (which included a number of stories about individuals the author had allegedly met — "I made 'em up, you know," he confessed with a grin), he found that the former was not his cup of tea.

Apparently, his city editor agreed with him, and in 1901 he was dismissed from the paper with a cursory "Neihardt, I guess we won't need you after today."

However, 20 years later, he returned to Omaha as Nebraska's Poet Laureate, and that same city editor, who was by then managing editor, offered him his job for a day — with instructions that he could do anything he wished with the paper. Unfortunately, he had prior commitments.

Fifty years after that — 70 years following his dismissal from the paper — the hapless city hall reporter again returned to Omaha, this time to receive national recognition on the Dick Cavett Show.

> "We need a different type of society."

At the present time, Dr. Neihardt is looking forward to attending the annual "Neihardt Day" in Bancroft on Sunday, where he will again receive the accolades of those who know and love him best — his fellow Midwesterners.

CYNTHIA JOHNSON

GRACIA SIEB

The fourth and final production of the mellerdrammer season at The Gas Light Theatre includes two individual plays, "Shoot Out At Hole In The Wall" and "He Lured Her To The Primrose Path But He Was Nipped In The Bud."

The performances will begin at 9 p.m. Wednesday and continue on Wednesday through Saturday nights until Sept. 1.

"Shoot Out At Hole In The Wall" takes place at the turn of the century in Wyoming's notorious Hole-In-The-Wall country. The western comedy concerns the dilemma of an honest couple who sets up shop in the midst of this den of outlaws and rustlers and a wagon of ladies who take refuge there.

In "He Lured Her To The Primrose Path But He Was Nipped In The Bud," the villain Sidney Shift uses profits from fraudulent dealings with the Cavalry to live grandly at the White Hotel in Muddy Gap. While there he pursues the heroin Alice White who is loyal to Pfc. Will Dew, the hero. All-in-all, through the course of events, virtue triumphs and Will rights wrong in true mellodrama style.

dear abby

It Wasn't Serious

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman who has been deeply involved with a married man for four years. He has children and so have I.

I divorced my husband thinking he would divorce his wife and marry me. I can't honestly say that he promised to divorce his wife, but he said so many things like: "If we were both free, I would marry you in a minute," and: "I have never loved anyone the way I love you." I took it to mean he would divorce his wife and marry me. I was wrong.

My husband never suspected a thing until I made a full confession. Now that he knows the truth he will have nothing to do with me. Was I foolish?

VIRGO

DEAR VIRGO: You were. Your mistake was taking pillow talk seriously. Actually, it's nothing more than a lot of horsefeathers.

DEAR ABBY: I am so angry I want to scream. I'm expecting my first baby after wanting one for five years. I am only six weeks along, so naturally we haven't told anyone yet. Not even our parents.

Yesterday I attended a church luncheon. Afterwards, the chairman stood up and said, "The floral centerpiece is for one of our members who is expecting her first baby after wanting one for so long!" Then she looked right at me.

Abby, I must have turned the color of a tomato. Then all the buzzing and chattering started. My mother and mother-in-law were both there looking surprised and hurt. I was so upset I wanted to run.

Neither my husband nor I told a soul, but yesterday he did bring home a used crib, and somebody must have seen him carry it into the house.

Why do people have to be so nosy? Now it's going to seem like such a long pregnancy. I can just hear them asking me the last two months, "Are YOU still walking around?"

At the bottom of your column it says, "You'll feel better if you get it off your chest." Thanks for listening.

BURNING IN DETROIT

DEAR BURNING: And you'll feel better when you get it off. Thanks for writing.

Test Your Play

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Spades and North leads the queen of hearts. How would you play the hand?

♠ AQ1072	N	♠ KJ964
♥ A5	W E	♥ 3
♦ KJ8	S	♦ A52
♣ K85		♣ AJ92

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Three Notrump. North leads the king of diamonds, on which South plays the four. How would you play the hand?

♠ KQJ3	N	♠ 1092
♥ KQ7	W E	♥ A83
♦ A8	S	♦ J63
♣ K1094		♣ QJ52

1. You can guarantee the slam by winning the heart lead with the ace, drawing trumps, ruffing a heart, and playing a low club from dummy.

If South produces the ten or the queen your worries are over, so let's assume he follows low. In that case you play the eight. Even if North wins cheaply with the ten he must hand you the slam-going trick whatever he returns. He is bound to give you either a ruff and discard with a heart return or a free finesse in diamonds or clubs.

You can also accomplish your purpose by leading the jack of clubs from dummy instead of the deuce, planning to finesse, and, in fact, this play gives you a chance for an overtrick if South has the queen.

2. You assume, of course, that the jack of diamonds is worth a trick, but even so, you will have only eight tricks after dislodging one of the missing aces and having your jack of diamonds dislodged in turn.

The hand therefore revolves around the best method of trying to steal a trick in one of the black suits so that you can speedily shift to the other black suit and so accomplish your purpose.

Psychologically, the best line is to win the diamond lead with the ace, cross to dummy with a heart, and lead the ten of spades. If South has the ace and plays low on the basis that you are planning to finesse, you make the contract by then shifting to clubs.

It is true you may go down with any method of play if the cards are adversely divided, but your best chance nevertheless lies in trying to outsmart the defense.

Exon Denies Rumor Deal Made With Waldron For Judgeship

By DON BEMAN
United Press International

Gov. J. J. Exon Thursday denied rumors he made any deal with State Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway in connection with Waldron's bid for a district court judgeship.

The governor said Waldron did mention at one time he was considering a try for the post in the 20th District being vacated by retiring Judge William D. Manasil.

But Exon said there was no move on either side to reach any kind of agreement.

"Sen. Waldron did inform me of this but he did not ask for a commitment, which would have been highly improper of him, nor was any given, which would have been highly improper of me," Exon said.

"As in all my judgeships, I make no commitments to anyone," he added.

The governor's response was to rumors an agreement was made to the effect that if Waldron worked for administration interests on key issues during this year's session of the Legislature, he would have an edge on the judgeship.

Exon said Waldron only mentioned the possibility of going after the post once and "he hasn't talked to me about it since."

He also noted that as yet, the decision isn't his to make.

Waldron is one of five persons who have requested consideration for the bench vacancy by the Judicial Nominating Commission, which has the task of putting together a list of candidates for Exon's use in making the final decision.

"I have absolutely nothing to do with the selection process until the Judicial Nominating Commission makes its recommendations to me," the governor said.

Should Waldron's name be on the commission list, "he will be given the same consideration as anyone else," Exon added.

The commission has scheduled a public hearing Aug. 30 to question the potential candidates after which the official slate of candidates for appointment will be compiled.

Pakhtoon State Hopes Kindle 25-Year Dispute

©The New York Times

Kabul, Afghanistan — Lt Gen. Mohammed Daud, the new ruler of this impoverished landlocked nation, half desert and half mountains, has revived the dream of a greater Afghanistan, enveloping a slice of Pakistan to create a separate client state along the border.

"As regards our relations with Pakistan we have a political dispute with that country — the only country with which we have an unresolved dispute," the tough, burly general said, shortly after leading a coup two weeks ago that toppled the monarchy and created a republic.

The dispute is an old one, but a continued source of tension and hostility between Afghanistan and neighboring Pakistan. Now, with a military leadership in Kabul, the quarrel has surfaced once again, both Pakistan and Iran are uneasy about General Daud's border policy.

The dispute involved the formation of a separate state, Pakhtoonistan, comprised of Pakhtoon tirbesmen (also called Pathans) on the Afghan-Pakistan frontier. Although no one is too sure of the exact number, believed to be about six million Pakhtoon on the Afghan side of the border and an equal number on the Pakistan side, in the northwest frontier province. The warriors are independent, skillful soldiers and have played a powerful role in Afghan politics.

Their demand for a separate state deeply upsets Pakistan, a nation that lost its eastern wing, now Bangladesh. Any attempt at further dismemberment of Pakistan would inevitably stir violence.

"The claim for a Pakhtoon state is not new," President Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan said last week. "We have lived with it in the past . . but if, God forbid, certain developments should put a strain on our relations, we are quite capable of looking after out national interests."

Daud made Pakhtoonistan a central issue while he was prime minister during the decade after 1953. In his final two years, from September, 1961, until June, 1963, diplomatic, trade, transit and consular ties between Afghanistan and Pakistan were severed. In fact, a key reason for Daud's dismissal as prime minister was the desire of King Mohammed Zahir Sha to mute the government's anti-Pakistan policies and win the support of the United States, a close ally of Pakistan.

Since 1947, when the British carved the subcontinent into India and Pakistan, and departed, Afghanistan has insisted that Pakhtoons be given the right of self-determination. The Afghans claimed the tribesmen were swallowed up by Pakistan when, in fact, the Pakhtoons wanted a separate state.

Why the dispute has lingered more than 25 years remains uncertain. Some officials are convinced that the bursts of rhetoric against Pakistan are a means of solidifying political support among the powerful tribesmen. Others say that the idea of a Pakhtoonistan "nation" straddling the Afghan-Pakistan border represents a desire for empire and power that Afghanistan, once called the crossroads of Central Asia, has lost.

Daud himself needs the support of the tribesmen to solidfy his power.

What worries diplomats now is that the resurgence of the border problems between Afghanistan and Pakistan could trigger involvement by Iran, a nation with close links to Pakistan. Iran also is worried that separatist movements along the Afghan-Pakistan border could lead to similar drives in Baluchistan, along the Iranian-Pakistan border.

IBEW, Square D Talks Still Deadlocked

Representatives of International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) and Square D Co. met in the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service (FMCS) offices in Washington, D. C., Wednesday and Thursday in an attempt to solve the Square D strike now in its seventh month.

The meetings were recessed by the FMCS with the parties still deadlocked, according to a union spokesman.

At the request of the FMCS, the parties had been called to Washington, along with officials of the country. The mediators are attempting to settle strikes in Lincoln and Peru, Ind., and to prevent strikes in further bargaining this year.

The union has proposed that all unsettled items be submitted to binding arbitration, the spokesman reported. At this time, the company has not responded to this proposal, except to say they would consider it, the spokesman said.

Wheat Export Contracts Total 52% Of Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — American exporters have contracts for another 3.2 million bushels of this season's wheat, bringing the estimated exports of the crop to at least 52 per cent of the total expected to be harvested, government-released figures indicated Thursday.

The figures, provided by exporters to the Commerce Department and released with qualifications by the Agriculture Department, show no changes in confirmed sales of last year's crop to Russia or mainland China between July 6, and July 13.

But almost 1.6 million bushels of wheat already bought by China from this year's crop apparently were shipped the second week of July.

Armour Slices Beef Output By 60%

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Armour and Co. reduced its beef production 60 per cent, laid off 2,500 workers and cut back canned meat and soap operations Thursday, blaming the moves on "disruption of normal marketing due to ceiling prices."

Jess Nicks, president, said the Hereford, Tex., and Omaha, Neb., beef plants would be closed, beginning this weekend. The Brownsville, Tex., plant was closed July 30. For the first time in 20 years, said Nicks, the Green Bay, Wis., plant will operate on one instead of two shifts.

Armour food distribution centers will reduce work forces by 25 per cent the week of Aug. 6, Nicks said, with an additional 25 per cent to be laid off the following week, if the shortage of beef continues.

Two Kearney Area Packers Plan To Close

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—Two more Kearney area beef packers are planning to close this weekend.

Neal Holub, manager of the Gibbon Packing Co., said Friday would be the last day of operation until after the ceiling on beef prices is lifted.

He said the firm has been operating at about half of its normal kill this week.

At Lexington, Cornland Dressed Beef Co. plans to close this weekend for a two-week vacation period.

Manager Warren Biermann said the plant normally takes a single vacation break each summer.

Not As Easy As It Looks!

A football game isn't a football game, and a basketball game just isn't a basketball game without a bit of halftime entertainment from the fairer gender.

Sure, it looks easy when they do it, but it doesn't come naturally!

Most spectators like the razzle dazzle, but many don't realize the hours and hours of behind-the-scenes, just plain hard work that goes into perfecting even a short routine.

A dance-drill team clinic this week at Nebraska Wesleyan University attracted almost 100 teens from Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and South Dakota.

Every phase of drill team technique was on the agenda — prop routines, flag, pompon, jazz, high kick, military, hand routines, stand dance routines, plus entrance and exits and marching.

Most clinic participants will head home this weekend to teach other team members what they learned. That means more long hours of practice.

Special events during the sessions included a Miss Drill Team contest, with the winner competing in the finals for Miss Drill Team of America, and outstanding team competition for class A and B teams.

Teams were judged for such fine points as marching, posture, kicks, rhythm, precision and confidence.

Douglas Probes Action's Legality

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

The question of the legality of Lancaster County Board's action to transfer $70,000 from the budget of Assessor Fritz Meyer to the commissioners' miscellaneous budget was raised Thursday.

County Atty. Paul Douglas told the board that there could be some legal problems if they intend to use that money for doing what is the responsibility of the assessor.

However, the board, which had indicated that it was not in favor of one of the methods proposed for updating the reappraisal by Meyer, said Thursday the commissioners merely wanted to see what the next step should be before Meyer might go ahead with the multiple regression plan he had proposed.

Although the commissioners had previously stated that by transferring the funds any reappraisal review would be under their supervision rather than that of the county assessor, they said Thursday they had no intention of going ahead with a review themselves.

Meyer said he had proposed to use that money for visual inspection of all property found to be undervalued or out of line to the majority of property in the county.

He said the $70,000 would have been used to get out into the field and do the work which he said he feels is his responsibility under the law.

"My duty is to establish values," he said, adding that the board's function is one of equalization and adjustment of the values he places on the property.

He cited an attorney general's opinion issued in 1953 which states:

"The county board has no authority to supervise and direct the action of the county assessor in regard to the assessment of property. However, the board does possess power to remove the assessor from office for willful disobedience of law or instructions of the state board; and the county board has the power to adjust assessments made by the assessor."

In transferring the money, the board created a new category of appraisal review under its miscellaneous fund but budgeted no money under the existing category of board of equalization.

Board To Consider LT&T Refund Claim

A claim for refund of $329,218.91 in 1972 taxes paid by the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co. will be considered by Lancaster County commissioner's at next Tuesday's meeting.

County Atty. Paul Douglas, to whom the claim was referred from the treasurer's office, asked the board Thursday to include the matter on the agenda for next week's board meeting.

On Nov. 30, 1972, the telephone firm paid a total of $576,133.09 — the first half of the personal property taxes for 1972 — and on June 30 paid the second half, for a total of $1,152,266.18, according to the claim.

LT&T claims that the taxes as purportedly assessed are "improper, invalid, unauthorized by law, and illegal," and the collection of such taxes constitutes a grossly "inequitable act and gross discrimination" and had worked a "wrongful constructive fraud upon the taxpayer."

The claim letter states that the county, through its board of equalization, has failed to equalize the values as between real and personal property.

LT&T claims that the county has assessed its personal property and that of other taxpayers at 35% of actual value, whereas it has assessed real property of LT&T and other taxpayers in the jurisdiction at about 25% of its actual value according to sales-assessment ratio investigations related to 1971 real estate transactions.

Such action, the claimant alleges, imposes "grossly unjust, inequitable, excessive, distorted, discriminatory, illegal, unauthorized, unconstitutional, invalid and wrongful and void tax."

Quarterback No Dummy

Former Michigan State football coach Duffy Daugherty will be a welcome addition to the ABC-TV crew of Bud Wilkinson and Chris Schenkel on college football telecasts this fall, if they can keep Howard Cosell in some other part of the country.

Daugherty, a story teller supreme, spun these two yarns to football writers in Chicago last week:

"I always went for a simple snap count like 'Go.' Then to put some fun in it, we told our quarterbacks to say, 'Set,' and anything else they wanted.

"We had one kid who'd say things like, 'Set! Hey, diddle, diddle, the cat and the fiddle, I think this time we'll run up the middle.'

"And he'd go up the middle.

"When we played Minnesota, the kid said, 'Set! Alan Page is a big sissy.' Then he'd run the other way."

Noting the reputation that he and Southern Cal coach John McKay had acquired as perennial optimists, Duffy explained how McKay's father, when young John was only nine, had tried to break him of his eternal optimism.

"One Christmas Eve when John had hung his stocking up before going to bed," Duffy related, "his father thought, 'This would be a good time to teach this young man a good lesson.' So he filled the stocking with manure.

"The next morning, there comes John running down the stairs. He sees his stocking and says, 'By golly, there's gotta be a pony around here somewhere.' "

Penn State football coach Joe Paterno, who was rankled back in 1969 when President Nixon made Texas his choice as the top college football team over the Nittany Lions, says, "I don't now how the President could know so little about Watergate in 1973 and so much about football in 1969."

Reason For Disqualification

McKay, who was in Chicago last week to coach the College All-Stars aginst the Miami Dolphins, was recalling his first round in the National Football Coaches Golf Tournament this summer at the heavily-treed DeSoto Golf Course in Hot Springs, Ark.

"I was hitting so many trees," he remembered, "that at one point, this forestry guy comes out and tells me if I hit one more tree, I'm out of the tournament."

Dick Becker, the former Lincoln sports editor who is now the top man at Ak-Sar-Ben, hasn't forgotten his old comrades in the football writing business.

Becker made his annual visit to Chicago last week to hobnob with writers in town for the College All-Star game and the Football Writers Association meetings held in conjunction with the game.

The feature race on Saturday's card at the State Fairgrounds is the $5,000 President's Cup, but the really "big" race will be the one carrying the tag of "Barry's Purse."

It'll be the annual giving away of a blanket by Ray and Laura Barry and Raymond is hoping there's only one winner this time. "Last year, we had a dead heat and had to go and buy another blanket," he recalls. "That was a little expensive."

No Women Allowed

That Burning Tree Country Club that you've heard mentioned if you've been watching the Watergate hearings is an all-male club — exclusively.

Women aren't even allowed in to drop their husbands off. Any female dropping a male off gets only to the outer gate and he walks from there.

Cleveland Browns' coach Nick Skorich isn't going along with the thought that former Oklahoma star Greg Pruitt will be used only on a spot basis.

"Right now," he says, "I'm planning to alternate him with Leroy Kelly. I always rated him a better pro prospect than Johnny Rodgers.

"Rodgers is a fine player, but he's only about 170 pounds. Pruitt is only 5-10, like Rodgers, but he weighs 188 now and can probably play at more than 190."

Lincolnite Paul Anderson and son, Don, have begun seeding this week on their new Monte Cristo Inn and Country Club near Edinburg, Tex., and plans are to have the 6,900-yard course ready for play by Jan. 1.

Construction is to begin the middle of this month on the first condominium apartment complex at the site with homes to be built later.

Rodgers' Touchdown Paces Montreal Victory

Hamilton, Ont. (AP) — Johnny Rodgers, the Nebraska speedster and Heisman Trophy winner, last year as the outstanding U.S. college football player, discovered early in his Canadian pro career he won't be getting the ball as often as he'd like.

"I wish I had got more balls," Rodgers said after his Canadian Football League debut Wednesday night in which he scored the decisive points as the Montreal Alouettes upset the Hamilton Tiger-Cats 18-9.

It was the first Eastern Football Conference game of the season for both clubs and 14 of the 29,116 fans at Ivor Wynne Stadium flew in from Rodgers' hometown of Omaha, Neb., to see their favorite.

Rodgers was held in check by Canadian rookie Lou Clare, who had the same job when he attended the University of Minnesota the last three years when Rodgers was at Nebraska. But the sensational wide receiver finally got to show in the second half why the Als are paying him an estimated $100,000 annually over the next three years.

He caught just two passes, both early in the third quarter, the second a 10-yard toss from quarterback George Mira at the Hamilton goal line that sent Montreal into a 15-3 lead.

The fact that the Hamilton defenses were keyed on stopping Rodgers probably accounted for Mira keeping the defending Grey Cup champions off balance.

"I think I only got about two passes all night," Rodgers said, "but when you're got a balanced attack like we had going, it's hard to change.

"But I'd still like to play a big part on this team. I didn't come up here to be a spectator."

The slightly built Rodgers, who admits he's "not fast, just quick," got into the clear a couple of times in the early going with Clare but the ball was overthrown. Mira tried to mix up the defenses by sending Rodgers into the line twice, but with little success.

Against veteran Lewis Porter, however, Rodgers took the Als out of danger in the early moments of the third quarter with a 22-yard reception. Following a 28-yard pass to Dalla Riva, Mira again hit the talented rookie with a payoff toss when Rodgers cut inside Porter at the goal line.

Rodgers didn't think the Ticats showed to their best advantage in the game.

"I don't think Hamilton is a last-place team," he said, adding: "We have a good chance to be No. 1 in this league if we don't make too many mistakes.

"They (the Ticat defenders) were a lot better than the statistics show. Their line is big, but not really too quick."

How did he feel in his pro debut, especially with some of the folks from home in the stands?

"Right at home on the field," Rodgers said. What distracted him most, he said, were the three downs played here compared to the four downs in the United States enabled him to handle the ball more.

"I expected to get the ball more," Rodgers admitted, "but once you establish a running game you don't change."

"It was worth the trip," said Everett Alger of Omaha, who has been a big booster of Rodgers since the 5-foot-9, 175-pounder played at Tech high school in Omaha.

"I never missed one of John's games," Alger said, "even at Tech. Boy, you shoulda seen that kid when he played linebacker for Dick Christie.

"He played 60 minutes of football in those days and he'd come off the field just dragging himself to the sidelines."

ROYALS EARN WEST LEAD

Kansas City Trims Chicago

. . . 5TH STRAIGHT WIN

By The Associated Press

The Kansas City Royals reeled off their fifth straight victory with a 3-1 triumph over the Chicago White Sox Thursday night and romped into first place in the American League West.

The Oakland A's, who were .100 of a point ahead of the Royals, slipped into second place after bowing 6-3 to the Minnesota Twins.

The Royals leaped to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Stan Bahnsen, 14-11, walked leadoff batter Cookie Rojas who scored on a forced play by Amos Otis. After Bahnsen walked John Mayberry, Otis headed for third but Bahnsen's throw for the out escaped Bill Melton.

Gaylord Perry struck out Boog Powell in the ninth inning and became the 24th pitcher in major league baseball to reach the 2,000 strike-out plateau in the Cleveland Indians' 6-0 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Boston Red Sox' 10-0 rout of the New York Yankees kept the Yanks four percentage points behind the Orioles, the American League East leaders.

In other AL action, it was Cleveland 6, Baltimore 0; Boston 10, New York Yankees 0, and Milwaukee 6, Detroit 3.

In the NL, it was Montreal 2, St. Louis 0; Houston 4, Los Angeles 2; Philadelphia 4, Chicago 1; New York Mets 5, Pittsburgh 1 and Cincinnati 17, Atlanta 2.

In Minnesota's triumph over Oakland, Larry Hisle slammed a double and two singles, scored two runs and drove in another. One of his runs came in the Twins' four-run seventh, one inning after Bobby Darwin connected for his 14th homer of the season off losing pitcher Paul Lindblad, 0-3.

Perry, the Cy Young Award winner as the American League's outstanding pitcher last year, struck out six Orioles and allowed only five hits en route to the shutout and a 10-15 season record. The Indians scored one run in each of the first two innings before exploding for four in the third and retiring starter Don Hood, 2-2.

The Red Sox got off to a 5-0 lead in the first inning on home runs by Orlando Cepeda and Carlton Fisk while Roger Moret, 4-0, allowed only four hits in recording his second shutout of the Yankees who have lost six of their last seven games.

The Milwaukee Brewers handed the Detroit Tigers their first loss since the All-Star break, 6-3, with a four-run fourth inning, including a three-run homer by rookie Darrell Porter. Porter's 12th home run of the season was only the fifth allowed by ace relief pitcher John Hiller in 42 appearances.

Nolan Ryan, 12-13, notched his first victory since his no-hitter against Detroit July 15 when he scattered eight hits and struck out 11 in the California Angels' 3-2 victory over the Texas Rangers. Billy Parker, recalled Wednesday from the minors, was credited with the winning run, a sacrifice fly in the sixth.

The four-hit pitching of Balor Moore and two runs by Ron Hunt led the Montreal Expos to a 2-0 victory over the St. Louis Cards, the National League East leaders. Moore struck out four and walked two in his first appearance since he was recalled early this week from two weeks in the minors. Tom Murphy, 2-4, allowed only five hits in his losing effort.

Local Juniors Triumph

National Bank of Commerce of Lincoln advanced in the winners' bracket of the Class A American Legion baseball tournament Thursday afternoon at Sherman Field with a 3-2 triumph over Lincoln Mutual Life.

Dick Dunn pitched the entire game for NBC, allowing only five hits, to pick up the win. Dan Strizek, who pitched only one inning in relief of starter Pat Anderson, absorbed the loss.

NBC scored the winning run in the bottom of the ninth when Jim Neal slashed a single to score Randy Beyer from second base. NBC had trailed 2-1 after seven innings.

The victors committed six errors but Lincoln Mutual Life, which committed only one miscue, was unable to take advantage of the NBC mistakes.

NBC advances to an 8 p.m. contest Friday and remains one of two unbeaten teams in the double-elimination tournament after action Thursday.

First National Bank exploded for five runs in the top of the ninth inning in Thursday's second game to eliminate Beatrice, 13-11.

Steve McManaman lashed a three-run double to pull the Lincolnites to a one-run lead and then scored on a wild pitch to provide the final margin of victory.

Beatrice responded with a six-run outburst in the bottom of the first inning after FNB scored two runs in the top of the first.

Beatrice extended the lead to 10-4 with two-run innings in the fourth and sixth before the Lincolnites closed the gap to 10-8 with four runs in the top of the seventh.

Beatrice scored again in the bottom of the eighth to build an 11-8 advantage and set the stage for the five-run outburst by First National in the ninth.

First National advances to a 3 p.m. contest Friday against Fairbury, an 8-3 loser to Lincoln Mutual Life Wednesday.

Merrill's Flight Heads Stakes

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Merrill's Flight, who won the State Fair Handicap last Saturday over six furlongs, gets a chance to prove his versatility in Friday's State Fair Breeders' Special at the State Fairgrounds.

This time the distance is one mile and the stakes are higher — $4,000-added purse as compared to the $3,000 State Fair purse.

The pride of M. D. Van Patten of Sioux City, Iowa, has accounted for two wins, one second and three thirds this year in 13 outings for earnings of $11,493. And he has demonstrated that the middle distance route is his speciality making him the choice for the allowance stakes test for 3-year-old Nebraska-breds.

Eight foes will oppose Merrill's Flight, who defeated Aloa Man by 2 3-4 lengths last Saturday to earn the winners' share of $1,750.

Larry LeRoy, who streaked to four consecutive early-season victories including the $10,000 Inaugural Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben, has fallen on hard times lately.

He has failed in his last three outings, finishing fifth each time. The last occasion was on Saturday when he trailed Merrill's Flight by more than three lengths at the wire.

But he still boasts earnings of $10,488 for Robert Snell of Hastings on four wins in seven 1973 appearances.

Another contender is Maurice Huff's Gem D. H., whose record shows one win, two seconds and three thirds in 12 tests this year.

Gem D. H. made a late bid in the State Fair Handicap after trailing the field throughout much of the chase. He moved to third, beaten less than three lengths, and may benefit from the additional two furlongs on Friday.

Felix Beda's Bed A Bundle has captured her only two Lincoln runs, but both were sprints. She won the $3,000 Inaugural Handicap over 5½-furlongs and then won over an identical distance last Friday beating such speedsters as Lisa's Alone, Amber Lace, and Tammy Steen.

John Koinzan's Amies Supreme scored a triumph over nine allowance competitors last Thursday over six furlongs, winning by 2½-lengths. He may prove troublesome for the leading contenders.

Other entrants include Jerry Kirby's Ahamo, C. B. Murnan's Shoulda Win, Ed Luther's Ride The Bubbles and Bart Ford's Dave The Dancer.

In Thursday's featured seventh race, Cowboy Cascio maintained his Lincoln unbeaten streak by scampering past seven foes over 5½-furlongs.

Cowboy Cascio, who scored a ½-length victory in last Tuesday's Kernel Stakes, won again to bring his career record to three triumphs and one second in six appearances.

Guided by Doug Schoepf, Cowboy Cascio, the third-choice of the crowd of 4,902, paid $12.20, $4.40 and $3.20. Joseph Moss' Our Tiger placed for $5.80 and $3.20 while the even-money favorite Miss Aggieville showed for $2.80.

The track's third-leading rider, Rodolfo Calderon announced he is returning to his home in Ecuador and will bypass the remainder of the Fairgrounds' racing season.

Calderon is suffering from loose ligaments in his left knee and a track spokesman said he felt it best to rest the knee for a few months.

The spokesman said Calderon injured the knee in March of 1972 at Turf Paradise in Phoenix and he was suffering from that mishap.

Calderon had nine winners, eight seconds and 10 thirds.

Meanwhile, Donna Collins, who scored the initial victory in infant riding career Wednesday at the Fairgrounds, tallied her second triumph by guiding Larry Donlin's Princess Ana past nine foes in the fifth race.

The 3-year-old filly returned $18.40 as only two of the eight favorites won on Thursday's program.

The two highest priced winners occurred in the daily double races as I'll Walktheline ($39.80) won the first and Darlla Nay ($35.80) took the second to produce a $401.20 daily double. That was quite a contrast from the $8.80 double on Wednesday.

Beatrice Blasts Franklin

Beatrice moved into the championship game of the Class A Area 4 American Legion Midget Baseball Tournament Thursday at Sherman Field with a 10-3 victory over the Franklin Company of Lincoln.

Catcher Ron Manes led the Beatrice win with 3-for-4, including a double, for two runs batted in. He also scored twice.

Beatrice's opponent in the 5:30 p.m. game Sunday will be the winner of Friday night's 5:30 contest between Lincoln's T. O. Haas and Lincoln's Judds.

Haas eliminated Lincoln's 1st Mid-America Thursday, 6-5 when a two-run rally with two outs in the final inning fell one run short for 1st Mid-America.

Haas put together a five-run fifth inning highlighted by Greg Heckman's two-run double.

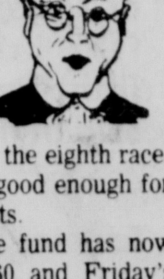
Aunt Priscilla Still Hoping For 'Big Move'

Just when I thought I was on the way towards getting my little darlings home, I ran into some bad luck again at the State Fairgrounds on Thursday.

My County Fleet, who helped me have a winning season two years, didn't do very well in the second race while Account Closed rallied from a slow start to finish third in the eighth race, but that wasn't good enough for my $2 win tickets.



Aunt Priscilla Loses $4.00

My $108 spree fund has now slipped to $74.60 and Friday's program represents the second half of the season so I'm about to make my big move.

I'm going to put my $2 win tickets on Georgian Gold in the fourth and Bill's Gold in the sixth.

Cards Ink Brahaney To NFL Contract

Normal, Ill. (UPI) — All-America center Tom Brahaney, the St. Louis football Cardinals' fifth-round choice in the college draft, signed his 1973 contract Thursday and began practicing with the team an hour later.

Brahaney, a 6-foot-2, 240-pounder from the University of Oklahoma, played in the College All-Star game at Chicago Friday.

Huskers Picked To Top Big 8

Kansas City, Mo. — For the third consecutive year, Nebraska is favored to win the Big Eight football championship, at least in the eyes of the sportscasters and sportswriters who cover the Conference.

The Cornhuskers, who were nosed out for the title by Oklahoma a year ago, garnered 93 first place votes from the 162 writers and broadcasters who participated in the 28th annual poll. The Huskers, who will take to the field September 8 on national television against UCLA, totaled 1,180 points.

Oklahoma, which toppled Nebraska in their showdown last Thanksgiving Day, was the runner-up in the poll with 26½ first place votes and 1,033 points. Close behind the Sooners was Colorado with 22½ votes and 1,018 points.

Rounding out the poll were Oklahoma State, fourth, and 758 points; Missouri, fifth, 705 points; Iowa State, sixth, 472 points; Kansas, seventh, 406 points; and Kansas State, eighth, 259 points.

O-State picked up 12 first place votes and Missouri had six votes for the top rung. Iowa State and Kansas each received one first place vote.

Nebraska has been the poll favorite five times and won the crown in three of those years (1965, '66 and '71.). All but two pollsters pegged the Huskers for a top division finish. Nebraska did receive one vote for fifth place and one vote for seventh place.

How accurate is the poll? Since the late Kansas publicist Don Pierce started the poll in 1946, the eventual champion has been correctly tagged 16 times. However, the favorites twice have fallen to the second division: Oklahoma in 1960 and Nebraska in 1967

Taylor Earns Big 8 Award

Kansas City, Mo. — Chris Taylor, the Olympic bronze medalist in heavyweight wrestling at Munich, will be honored Aug. 15 by the Kansas City Sports Commission as the Big Eight's Athlete of the Year.

Taylor, who in two seasons at Iowa State compiled an impressive 86-0-1 record, totaled 69 pins and averaged just a few seconds over two minutes for each of them. In 1973, Taylor was 47-0 with 43 pins and one forfeit decision.

The selection of Taylor, a native of Dowagiac, Mich., was made by a select panel of Sports Commission members, athletic administrators and sports writers. Alex George, a former Big Eight football official and current president of the Sports Commission, made the announcement.

The 400-pound-plus Taylor won the award over nominations from each conference institution. In addition to Taylor, nominees were Ernie Kusnyer, Kansas State basketball; Dennis Schultz, Oklahoma State football and track; John Stearns, Colorado football and baseball; John Schroll, Kansas football; John Brown, Missouri basketball; Johnny Rodgers, Nebraska football; and Odess Lovin, Oklahoma gymnastics.

KC's Schaal Hurts Ankle

Kansas City (AP) — The Kansas City Royals put third baseman Paul Schaal on the 15-day disabled list Thursday, retroactive to July 28, and called up George Brett from Omaha to take his place.

Schaal jammed his right ankle July 22 in a game against Milwaukee. A team spokesman said the ankle has not responded to treatment and was placed in a partial cast in Chicago Thursday. The Royals are there for a series with the White Sox.

Schaal will return to Kansas City for treatment and will be out at least 10 more days, the club said.

Brett, 20, is the younger brother of pitcher Ken Brett of the Philadelphia Phillies. He was hitting .284 with six home runs and 56 runs batted in. He had been selected as the starting third baseman on the American Association all-star team.

DINE WITH Wine

The Finger Lakes region of upper New York state is the second largest wine producing area of America. Most of the wine made here is made from grape varieties indegenous to this part of America. Long known and enjoyed for their freshness and charm, the wines of the Gold Seal Vineyards have occupied a position of distinction among native American wines. We have just made a special purchase of these fine table wines and are offering them—while the supply lasts—at the extremely low price of: $2.99 per full half-gallon—(this brings the price of this fine wine down to $1.20 per fifth)—or less than the lowest priced California wine being sold in this market today.

Staubach Set For Exhibition

Quarterback Roger Staubach of the Dallas Cowboys probably gets phantom pains in his right shoulder when he remembers last season's exhibition game against the Los Angeles Rams.

Staubach, scrambling about while looking for a receiver, collided with Rams' linebacker Marlin McKeever, suffering a shoulder separation that sdelined him for most of the season.

The signal-caller gets a chance for revenge against the Rams Friday night when the two National Football League teams meet in a preseason game. McKeever is recovering from knee surgery and won't pose a problem for Staubach, who will receive a strong bid from Craig Morton for the No. 1 quarterback assignment. Morton, who guided the team last season when Staubach was injured, is back with the Cowboys following a tedious contract dispute in which he reported late to camp.

The New York Jets play at Houston and Detroit is at Washington in two other contests scheduled for Friday night as the NFL's preseason schedule gets underway in full swing.

Miami hosts Cincinnati Saturday, while Baltimore is at Pittsburgh, New Orleans is at Kansas City, Chicago faces Green Bay at Milwaukee, the New York Giants are at San Diego, New Orleans is at Kansas City and Buffalo plays Philadelphia at Jacksonville, Fla.

Oakland is at New England Sunday while San Francisco plays at Cleveland.

The Oilers, their roster loaded with 37 new players acquired in off-season trades, drafted as rookies or signed as free agents, will make their debut against the only club they defeated last season. Joe Namath will start at quarterback for the Jets with Al Woodall in the backup role.

Bill Kilmer will quarterback the Redskins with running back Duane Thomas, the elusive rusher who led Dallas to victory in the 1972 Super Bowl, sparking Washington's ground attack. Detroit's new head coach, Don McCafferty, will start Greg Landry at quarterback.

Super Bowl champion Miami is on the heels of a victory over the College All-Stars in which Larry Csonka ran for two touchdowns and Bob Griese and Earl Morrall alternated at quarterback. Csonka is expected to see limited action after injuring a toe against the collegians.

San Diego Coach Harland Svare said veteran quarterback Johnny Unitas will start and play at least one quarter against the Giants. New York will pit the NFL's leading quarterback last season, Norm Snead, and 1,000-yard rusher Ron Johnson against the Chargers.

"funny" —Donald J. Mayerson, Cue Magazine

"Outrageously funny. A quick pace and golden glow of con-men, the job is really pulled off by the quality of performances, nothing less than perfection. There is wit, sophistication and a good time at hand." —Judith Crist, New York Magazine

"Sly and funny, Claude Lelouch's 'MONEY, MONEY, MONEY' is a bright, clever comedy." —Howard Thompson, New York Times

"Devilishly mad, deliciously insane movie. The cast is superb. It's as if the Marx Brothers have suddenly been let loose again to make us laugh at our own foibles." —Kathleen Carroll, New York Daily News

"Explosively funny, priceless hilarity, crime turns out to pay quite handsomely. Lelouch's cast is a treasure chest of comic talent headed by Jacques Brel, who looks like a cross between Jean Paul Belmondo and a flamingo. They are droll, lovable rogues capable of winning your affection and stealing your wallets."

Kremer, Exon To Discuss Gasoline Sales Tax

By United Press International

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora said Thursday he would discuss with Gov. J. J. Exon the possibility of replacing Nebraska's flat per-gallon gasoline tax with the sales tax.

The decision to seek out the feelings of the governor followed a hearing on a resolution which asks for a solution to the lack of direct access to the Interstate for many Nebraska communities.

"If we are going to have more roads then we're going to have to raise more money to pay for them," Kremer said.

During the hearing, representatives of the State Roads Department said it appeared Nebraska could not count on increases in federal highway construction allocations to pay for more feeder routes.

Two communities asking for direct feeder routes to the Interstate were Friend and Sutton.

Paul J. Bender of Sutton said not only should agricultural and industrial needs, as expressed by the Friend Chamber of Commerce, be taken into consideration, but social factors as well.

Leahy's Japan Trip Cost $21,746

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—The Omaha World-Herald said Wednesday former Mayor Eugene Leahy spent $21,746 on a 16-day trade mission to Japan earlier this year.

The total included nearly $11,000 in consultant fees.

The expenses included transportation to and from Japan for the consultants, a Kansas City-area financial adviser and the Denver regional director of the Economic Development Agency of the U.S. Commerce Department.

Leahy, the consultants and five other men went to Japan to encourage businesses there to make investments and set up plants in the Omaha metropolitan area.

The expenditures were found in Finance Department records by a reporter checking on spending by the mayor's office.

The World-Herald said the Japan trip cost was nearly $2,000 more than contained in the mayor's office budget for travel and consultant's fees for the entire year.

Records showed none of the spending was submitted to the City Council for approval, either before or after the trip Jan. 20-Feb. 3.

Heads of city departments are required to submit all travel expense requests of more than $100 to the council for approval. Leahy said he thought it was his prerogative to hire the consultants to aid him on the trade mission to Japan. Since the money came out of his office budget, Leahy said he did not think council permission was necessary.

As a result of the trip, Leahy said some Japanese companies are interested in locating businesses in Omaha.

Officials Say No CIA Army For Cambodia

(c) Washington Star-News

Phnom Penh — High-ranking United States officials say the U.S. will not build up a Central Intelligence Agency-run private army in Cambodia similar to the force in Laos.

The sources say a deteriorating military situation and lack of funds make such a large-scale operation impossible now.

Thone Now Backs Alaskan Route

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., said Thursday that although he earlier advocated a Canadian pipeline to bring Alaskan oil to the United States, he now favors the proposed Alaskan route.

However, he said both routes should continue to be explored since he believes both will be needed to move the 10 billion barrels of oil known to exist on Alaska's north slope.

"My decision in favor of the Alaska line was reached because the United States needs more petroleum as soon as possible," Thone said. "We also need to take steps now to correct our trading deficit with the rest of the world."

The Nebraska Republican said Interior Secretary Rogers Morton has said a decision in favor of the Canadian pipeline might delay U.S. receipt of the oil by seven years beyond the three which will be needed to build the Alaskan pipeline.

"It now appears that to move Alaskan oil through Canada would require that the Canadians get a high percentage of both the oil and ownership in the pipeline company," Thone added.

"An Alaskan pipeline will not solve all our energy problems," he said, "but if its construction can begin this year, by 1976 it can be providing about 10% of our petroleum needs. We'd better get on with it."

College Credits Offered To Local Social Workers

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Centennial Education Program, one of the university's leaders in granting credit for student volunteer work in the community, has decided to offer college credit this fall to employes of community social agencies who become Centennial students.

The new program, to be tried on an experimental basis during the coming academic year, will be aimed specifically at employes who lack formal training and want to know more about the social arena in which they work.

Gene Harding, senior fellow at Centennial, said he hopes to attract 25 or 30 people from the Lincoln community who would be interested in the approach.

Although there's been no announcement of the project yet, Harding said he's already been contacted by a half-dozen people who've heard about the idea and are interested in enrolling.

Started With NOVA

Harding, Lincoln campus director of the NOVA program in the first year of that experimental approach, said a Centennial College project which incorporated some of the NOVA philosophy led to the idea to try a program which would offer on-the-job continuing education to social agency employes who do not have college degrees.

The NOVA program is one which has provided a year's college credit to students who spend full time working in poverty agencies or neighborhoods across the state.

When Harding moved to Centennial last year as its senior fellow, he said he wondered "if kids can learn about contemporary issues by working full-time in Scottsbluff, why can't they learn here (in Lincoln) by working 10 to 15 hours a week?"

To help find out, about 50 university students enrolled in Centennial went to work as nonprofessional aides in several Lincoln agencies and institutions, working with the poor, the mentally retarded or disturbed, the elderly and the delinquent.

Group Seminars

Twice each week, the students participated in group seminars at Centennial, where they heard about or discussed aspects of their work.

Once a week, Harding met with the students individually to review their daily journals and talk about particular problems, and he and other Centennial fellows directed the students toward study materials that would help them understand more about the problems they saw in their work.

Harding said after that experience Centennial began toying with the idea that such an approach might be useful for adults who are already at work in similar agencies but who have not had the chance for a formal education in the disciplines associated with their employment.

"Their job is their laboratory," he noted.

Harding said other Centennial fellows, professors assigned full- or part-time to the Centennial program, were enthusiastic over the opportunity to join the venture.

"Not one," he said, "asked whether there would be any more pay involved."

Those professors have agreed, he said, to visit with the adult workers every few days at their place of employment, to help them find readings that will aid them in their work and to conduct three weekend seminars for them at the college, which is housed in a UNL dormitory.

Garnet Larson, a retired professor of social work, has agreed to act as a consultant to the project, he said, "to keep it going."

The participants will be able to register for and receive six hours of credit which can be applied toward graduation requirements in several colleges, including Arts and Sciences, Teachers and Home Economics.

That's the amount of credit regular Centennial students earn while enrolled for the remainder of their studies in traditional courses on the campus.

President Nixon

Tired Nixon Goes Alone To Retreat

Thurmont, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon, appearing tired and drawn, went alone to his mountain retreat at Camp David Thursday for a long weekend visit.

A White House spokesman said he would use the time to review legislation awaiting his signature. Other White House officials said the President had begun preparing another response to allegations that he was involved in wrongdoing in connection with the Watergate scandal.

Nixon has promised to give another accounting of his own knowledge about the Watergate and the subsequent cover-up attempt after the Senate investigating committee finishes the current phase of hearings, possibly next week.

Officials said he is considering presenting another "white paper" on the Watergate and related events — similar to the one he issued May 22 — and making a separate television address.

The May 22 statement was the most detailed accounting yet by Nixon of what he knew about the June 17, 1972 break-in at the National Democratic Headquarters and the subsequent cover-up.

Nixon, who went to Camp David by helicopter, was accompanied only by a White House physician, Dr. Roger Ward, and a military aide, part of the entourage which follows the President everywhere he goes.

TV Toilet Training?

TOKYO (AP) — A newspaper suggested that Tokyo television stations give instructions on how to use Western-style toilets. "The Japanese have been accustomed to the squat system toilet," wrote the English-language Mainichi Daily News. "The general trend is toward wider adoption of the imported system. The question now comes up whether these Western-style toilets are being properly used."

Thorny Job Faces LCS Planners

A thorny task faced the planning division of Lincoln Community Services (LCS) at its first meeting of the year Thursday night.

The task was to decide which group — the Malone Community Center or the new Malone-Clinton Community Center — would best serve its community.

Included in that task was the question, which group — if there be two groups — gets United Fund-LCS money for 1974.

A subcommittee formed from the planning division will be responsible for reporting on the Malone question and recommending answers.

Harry Allen, subcommittee chairman, plans to start digging into the matter next week and said he hopes to have a report for the planning division's next meeting in early September.

At that time, the report will be reviewed and ultimately will be presented to the LCS board and probably to the two quarreling groups.

'Difficult Task'

Allen remarked, "It's an important task and I think it's a difficult one."

In preliminary discussion of the assignment, planning division members talked about whether there is an organization behind the name of the newly-formed Malone-Clinton Community Center, and if so, what considerations should be given to its publicized challenge for Malone Community Center funds.

One suggestion about the eventual outcome of the controversy came from Robert Hans.

"The happiest solution I think would be a merger of the two groups," he said.

At least two persons at the meeting expressed doubt that there are any people in back of the Malone-Clinton name. Others said they suspected it might be a confrontation between the old guard, represented by the Malone Community Center, and the newer more activist group.

Objectivity

But after the discussion all agreed the subcommittee must be objective and not prejudge the new group or nurture any biased feelings about the established Malone Community Center.

The Rev. Robert Jeambey, a subcommittee member, said he felt somewhat uneasy about LCS becoming involved in the internal affairs of the groups.

Allen said he recognized this as a legitimate concern and said the subcommittee would avoid this as much as possible, though LCS's responsibility for determining a budget for one group or the other requires a certain amount of scrutiny of the groups' affairs.

But, Allen added, "I don't think it's up to us to go into an area and be paternalistic and tell people what they ought to be doing."

NU's 'Fledermaus' Is Successful

By JOSEPH CRAWFORD

The old dictum that comedy is tougher than straight drama did not keep the University of Nebraska opera department from undertaking a production of Johann Strauss Jr.'s "Die Fledermaus."

The results are professional and entertaining. The success underscores the coming departure of director John Zei from the NU Staff.

The slight jar felt at a contemporary setting is soon forgotten.

In all fairness, a complete period piece is an Herculean task, especially in a summer session. Dean Tschetter's settings continue to delight and please, serving while not distracting.

The lighting, especially in Act II, is effective. Also, the bizarre character of Act II serves to cover for some rather variegated costuming.

Orchestra Skillful

Dr. Grace's summer orchestra (with minimal rehearsal) reflects the skill of its veteran players. Obviously, opera accompaniment is more difficult than a reading of a straight score. In general, musical balance and ensemble are very commendable, rehearsal time considered.

The dancers, responsible for a fair portion of Act II, should have been allowed more rehearsal. Their obvious talent deserves better.

John Brandstetter as Dr. Falke sounds and looks properly suave (except when waltzing), secure characterization. Sandra Utsumi is a vocal and visual delight as the saucy Adele. Rick Brandt is sufficiently hammy as Alfred, the Italian tenor. Kent Hall's portrayal of the inept warden is a strong one. Tom Harvey's impersonation of the incompetent lawyer Blind is perhaps overshadowed by more experienced performers.

Doubly Cast

In the doubly-cast roles (on a Thursday-Saturday and Friday-Sunday basis), Roger Benjamin is vocally handsome in appearance though a bit stiff in Act I, and Gary Lamb scores soundly as the errant husband. Marilyn Cronin as Rosalinde is vocally strong though short on diction, while Jeanne Dietrich has overcome physical problems to make the ambivalent character sympathetic. Denice Wekkes perhaps sounds better as Orlofsky (due mainly to a favorable tessitura), but Sara Ganz's characterization is superior.

In short, this reviewer finds it a delightful evening's entertainment.

Performances continue through Sunday.

Two Injured In Accident

Two Lincoln people were treated for injuries and released from Bryan Memorial Hospital following a two-car accident at 66th and Vine early Thursday afternoon, according to police reports.

Police said Elanore Estes, 44, of 6626 Bethany Park Drive, suffered two broken ribs when the car she was driving was in collision with a car driven by Helen Davis, 30, of 836 No. 68th.

Mrs. Davis' son, Thomas, 10, received a bruise to his head.

Tallow Supply Is 'Increasingly Critical'

Akron, Ohio (AP) — An "increasingly critical" shortage of tallow may force production curtailments on the rubber industry, the chairman and chief executive officer of B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. said.

Vets' Health Benefits Bill Inked

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon Thursday signed legislation expanding health benefits available to veterans and their families, hailing the measure as a "constructive compromise" that fits within his tight federal budget.

The bill, signed in brief Oval Office ceremonies, is a slimmed-down version of legislation Nixon vetoed last October on grounds it was too costly and a poor approach to expanding medical care.

"The most objectionable features of the previous bill have been removed," Nixon said in a statement. He added that enactment of the revised measure "demonstrates that it is possible to develop sound legislation, mutually agreeable to both the congressional and executive branches, without violating our goals for a tight federal budget."

The major provisions of the bill make dependents of veterans who died or are 100 per cent disabled from service-connected disabilities eligible for medical care financed by the Veterans Administration. Until now, VA medical care has been limited to veterans with service-connected disabilities or elderly veterans with nonservice-connected disabilities.

The bill Nixon vetoed would have opened the VA hospital system to the dependents. Under the measure he signed, the medical care will be provided to veterans' families either through the Defense Department program commonly called "CHAMPUS," or through independent VA contracts for health services. VA hospitals are opened in special cases when special facilities are not otherwise available.

First-year costs of the program are estimated at $65 million, about $70 million less than under the bill Nixon vetoed.

Vets Bill Passes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed and sent back to the House Thursday a bill providing a 10 per cent cost-of-living pension increase for elderly veterans and their widows.

Market Slips Again

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market nosed lower for its fourth straight session Thursday, amid economic worries and profit-taking.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 5 points earlier in the sessions, firmed at the closed to end the day off 2.04 at 910.14.

This brought the decline since Monday to about 26 points. In the two-week rally ended last Friday, the Dow had risen some 50 points.

"The market is still digesting its July rally," said Larry Wachtel, analyst with Bache & Co. "It is continuing in the consolidation phase begun Monday."

Trading was a dull total of 12.08 million shares on the New York Stock Exchange. Wachtel noted that "buyers had fled the scene," leaving the market drifting most of the session.

A major reason for the decline was the climb in interest rates, brokers said. Higher interest rates make it more costly for business to borrow funds for expansion. Also they make bonds more attractive relative to stocks, tending to siphon funds.

Worries over inflation and rising food prices, as well as fears of a possible economic slowdown, were also factors in the market's weakness, brokers said.

Wachtel predicted the market probably would remain soft Friday but could pick up next week.

On the NYSE, declines led advances 877 to 544 among 1,788 issues traded, while the Big Board index fell 0.06 to 56.84.

Northwest Airlines was volume leader on the New York Stock Exchange, off 1 to 21¾. A 164,400-share block traded earlier at 21, off 1¾.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Better Housekeeping Needed In Government

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

Merryle Rukeyser

Manipulation Ineffective

America will come of age in an economic sense and will stop treating the public as suckers when the federal government turns away from manipulation as an inflation cure and embraces better housekeeping methods.

This national need became more acute in the past four decades when the New Deal and its successors enlarged the portion of total economic activity ascribable to government action.

Price freezes and controls in various phases, constitute no effective alternate to prudent handling of the public purse. In recent years, the federal policy of condoning budgetary deficits even in times of expanding volume of trade and employment tended to out-Keynes Keynes.

John Maynard Keynes, the British father of the modern soft money school, approved budgetary deficits only during periods of recession, and counselled a reversal of such fiscal policy in booms.

But under President Kennedy, Walter Heller, as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, broke new ground in advising planned deficits even during rising business and employment to quicken economic growth This policy was potentially inflationary and its impact was unloosed later when President L. B. Johnson after escalating the Vietnamnese War said that we can have "guns and butter too."

When he took office in January, 1969, President Nixon inherited inflationary pressures and for a time put the emphasis on restraints. But after a while, in face of stoppage of business expansion, President Nixon ceased advocating balanced budgets, announcing that he had become a Keynesian. He argued that the deficit budget he was supporting would be in balance when and if "full employment" conditions developed.

With a record number of Americans currently gainfully employed, the federal budget is still in the red. This runs counter to Keynes's recommendation in times of boom to achieve a substantial budgetary surplus and use it to dampen down overheating of the economy through paying off public debt.

Until this year, domestic inflation was actually less than in other principal industrial countries. But U.S. money mismanagement over an extended period had created a chronic imbalance in international payments. The deficits resulted in a glut of dollars overseas, and brought chaos in the foreign exchanges as the dollar was twice devalued within 14 months. But the devaluations were manipulative rather than corrective of fundamentals.

Instead of financial tinkering, good housekeeping should have entailed stopping termporarily foreign aid until the dollar crisis was met, asking the Allies to assume a larger share of the cost of collective security abroad, and use of the new detente with Communist nations to bring about agreements concurrently to cut down troops and bases abroad.

On the domestic scene, it's high time to stop the conflict between the White House and the Congress on better economic housekeeping. This goal should be a joint responsibility To be effective, Congress, in view of the relative growth in governmental economic activity, should replace its "horse and buggy" setup. Instead of viewing receipts and expenditures piecemeal, Congress should supervise the budget totalities. A panel of the Committee for Economic Development has suggested that a single committee be set up in both houses of Congress to coordinate federal income and expenditures.

(Mr Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning financial problems Letters, with stamped self-addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star Questions of general interest will be answered in the column Others, to the extent that time permits will be handled by mail.)

Commodity Trade Mixed

Chicago (AP) — Commodity futures prices again moved nervously over a relatively wide range on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday and wheat futures closed with limits gains, while soybeans were down the limit.

Despite the wide price moves, however, the volume of trade appeared to be thin, but mixed.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 8-3
